In the last three months the United States Steel Corporation earned more than $45,000,000, $9,000,000 more than in the same period a year ago. We still have some prosperity with us.

Why does Steel stock drop, with such earnings, and with nearly a billion belonging to the common stockholders stored away in cash, bonds and other liquid securities, in addition to owning the iron of the United States?

Answer: These are get-rich-quick days. Steel pays 5 per cent., lots of things pay 8. The time may be coming when some will regret that they sold their Steel to buy "lots of things."

Gentlemen that began gambling in wheat and other grain a little while ago, for instance, are thinking it over today. A loss of 20 cents a bushel for those that gamble in a million bushels at a time and more brings thoughtfulness. Gambling to put up the price of food should bring something more serious than thoughtfulness.

John R. Voorhis, still at work in public office, celebrates his ninety-first birthday. He says it all in a few words. "I always think that I can do the next day's work, and I find that I am able to do it, that's all."

You are young just as long as you are not afraid of tomorrow.

The joke of today was once solemn earnestness. When the wind died out in yesterday's yacht race, sailors and others threw pennies into the ocean, the idea being to pay old Neptune for a wind. One humorist "dropped into the ocean a million-dollar check. That was all a joke.

It was not a joke to the Greeks who thought that Boreas, God of the north wind, sent the storm that wrecked the Persian fleet to show his gratitude for the beautiful Greek dancing girl, Oreithyia.

It was not a joke when a great ruler ordered the Adriatic to be flogged because it had displeased him, or when the Gauls, ancestors of the fighting French, rushed against the rising waves with drawn swords.

We laugh at what once was solemn earnest. How will the future laugh at us for the earnestness with which we throw our lives and all our efforts into the pitiful pursuit of pennies?

A lady offers her child, two and a half years old, for $250. She needs the money for another child. The human being appears to be looking up as a commodity. You can buy a pretty good second class chow dog for $250. Ordinarily you could get a human child for nothing.

Nelly Roland, "once a star," hanged herself, leaving this word: "I have no friends." Many without knowing it might say the same. Aristotle often exclaimed, "My friends, there are no friends!". And the young soldier whose horse had won the race said to Cyrus, the great king: "I would not put any palce upon my horse, and I would not exchange him for a kingdom. But I would exchange him for a true friend, if I could find one."

Life is made easy by the fact that so many are able to accept gossiping intimacy for the friendship that is so rare.

You and your friends that make up the population of the United States, paid in taxes in the past year more than five thousand million dollars. You realize the power of numbers when reminded that five billions means only fifty dollars for each inhabitant.

If all human beings really worked and saved, not through selfishness, but through conscientiousness, how light a burden would be even a great war that raises the cost of government to five billions a year!

The State of New York paid more than one-quarter of all the five billions of taxes paid in this country last year. Some New Yorkers will say, "Outrageous to make one State pay 25 per cent. of the national exvenue."

Other States will say, "Arrange to deposit all the money of the country with me, establish most of the big banks and headquarters of all the biggest corporations inside my borders, send 90 per cent. of the richest men in the country to live and spend their money in my city, and I'll be glad to pay one-quarter of the taxes."

Lord Robert Cecil, important Englishman, one of the chief carpenters in building the League of Nations, says the Allies drove the Poles to war against Russia. He probably knows. The father, explaining a word, said, "Orthodoxy is my doxy, heterodoxy is the other man's doxy.

That seems to be the peace league's idea of war—it is all right if the league gentlemen want it—all wrong if anybody else wants it.

INQUIRY IN POISONING OF 17 CHILDREN

2 THIEVES FIRE UPON OFFICER

Caught Trying to Break Into Freight Car, They Escape After Battle

A revolver battle in which more than a dozen shots were fired took place in the Boynton yards of the Boston & Maine Railroad at East Somerville between Special Officer Arthur W. Duffy and two unidentified men early today.

Duffy reported to the Somerville police that the two men made their escape, although one fell while running, leading to the belief that he was wounded.

According to the special officer, he came upon the two men attempting to force open the door of a freight car, and fired one shot in the air to frighten them. His object was not achieved, however, for the two men whipped out revolvers and discharged them at Duffy.

Honors were then even, neither side having scored, and it was now the special policeman's turn. He fired two shots this time, but missed and the two men fled.

Duffy pursued them, firing as he ran. He says they dodged underneath a car, and on the other side one stumbled and fell. Duffy said he believed he had wounded him, but the city police say he was mistaken. The men eventually got out of the yards near Joy street, East Somerville.

Lynn Photo Studio Employe Badly Burned as Gas Ignites Clothing

Her clothing a mass of flames, Thelma Gerrish, employed in a photographer's studio at No. 333 Union street, Lynn, ran screaming from the fifth to the third floor at that address today and after the fire had been suffocated by the janitor of the building was removed in a critical condition to Lynn General Hospital.

Miss Gerrish, twenty-five years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fitz Henry Gerrish of No. 84 Atkins avenue, was alone in the studio of Grace Barry, finishing portraits. She was using a flat press when her apron caught fire from the gas. Before the janitor could extinguish the flames the young woman was badly burned about the body.

The anguished cries of the young woman could be heard in every part of the office building and created something close to panic among seventy-five other young women employed there.

Who Owns Cameroon? Where Is League?

By International News Service.

Paris, July 28.—Who owns French Cameroon; also, where does the League of Nations hold forth?

The newspaper Cri de Paris wants to know. In its quest for information the newspaper applied to the French diplomatic agent in the African colony. Here is the reply:

"Frankly, I am unable to tell you. When my chief, the Governor-General of French Equatorial Africa, gives me an order, I have to await confirmation from the League of Nations. This is in accordance with instructions from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at Paris, confirmed by M. Clemenceau, when he was Premier. I have been trying to find the address of the League of Nations. I sent several messages to Paris with the object of [illegible] but [illegible] have been unable to help me."

ICE CREAM BLAMED BY PARENTS

Police and Health Authorities Investigate Stores Where Penny Ice Cream Is Sold

Seventeen children, all residents of Houghton street, Dorchester, together with a number of others in that section, have been stricken by poison, believed to be ptomaine.

Dorchester parents, alarmed by the epidemic believed to have been caused by penny ice cream sandwiches, have notified the local authorities and an investigation is being made.

According to physicians in the Children's Hospital, and Dr. Joseph J. O'Brien of Dorchester Lower Mills the trouble was due to high coloring matter in the ice cream and material used in the composition of the sandwiches.

The children, among whom were Mary G. Reagan, aged eight, and Mary A. Sheerin, aged three, both of No. 378 Adams street, had nausea, high fever and delirium. Physicians summoned by their parents declared that their condition undoubtedly was due to ptomaine poisoning, caused by eating the ice cream sandwiches. This diagnosis was borne out. It was said, by the fact that no adults were affected.

The attention of the authorities was directed to the store, extremely popular with the children of the neighborhood, where ice cream sandwiches were sold for one cent. It is understood that some of these sandwiches will be analyzed by representatives of the local health department.

GENERAL ALARM IN CHELSEA

$15,000 Loss in Fire in District Where Great Conflagration Occurred

A general alarm fire in the junk district of Chelsea, where the conflagration of twelve years ago began, destroyed the junk and rag shop of Cooperslk Rosenthal, No. 231 Second street, early today.

The blaze, which originated from an undetermined cause, according to the police, spread to a one-story wooden addition to the shop and caused Chief Hudson to summon help from Everett.

The fire broke out in a two-story wooden structure used for the storage of rags and paper. The district is considered the most dangerous in Chelsea. The police estimated the damage at $15,000.

ARRESTS DELAYED IN CAMBRIDGE

Discussion of the proper course to be pursued in the prosecution of one or two members of the Cambridge Police Department and four Cambridge business men, alleged to be involved in the wholesale theft of motor cars, developed a sharp conflict of opinion today between Cambridge city authorities and the office of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex.

Having unearthed a mass of sworn testimony on which the charge was made that police and business men are involved—and having made his inquiry at the request of the Police Department—the District Attorney appeared to think that the City of Cambridge should go ahead and prosecute.

As represented by Mayor Quinn and Chief of Police McBride, on the other hand, the City of Cambridge inclined to the opinion that, having the testimony before him and its import fresh in mind, Assistant District Attorney George Stanley Harvey should present his evidence to the Grand Jury which meets next Monday in special session for the specific purpose of going into the story of the "auto ring." This also appeared to be the opinion of attorneys.

"We do not see," said one city official,

CAMBRIDGE MAYOR AROUSED BY EXPOSE OF 'AUTO THEFT RING'

DEMANDS ARREST OF THOSE INVOLVED IN SCANDAL

"the necessity for asking for warrants and going through the red tape of police court arraignments when there is a Grand Jury session at hand, and indictments if reports are correct, may be his almost for the asking."

When the conference had gone along for an hour or two—with each side insistent, but neither side angry—it was announced that the District Attorney, the Mayor and the Chief of Police would sit down together some time this afternoon and try to come to an amicable agreement in the public interest.

POLICEMAN NAMED.

A police lieutenant is said to be involved on the charge of accepting "protection money" from auto thieves.

A patrolman is implicated in another automobile deal, but in such a manner as to create doubt as to his intent and whether it would be better to prosecute him in court of law or try him before a police board for alleged infraction of police regulations. The business men are accused of receiving stolen cars.

The range of the prosecution depends entirely upon Chief of Police McBride and Mayor Edward W. Quinn. It is distinctly a municipal "clean-up," in which the office of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts was called upon to assist the city authorities, who are at liberty to make as many arrests as the evidence prepared for them may warrant.

"The responsibility is now up to the city officials to clean house," said a high official today.

DEMAND "SHOWDOWN."

Agitation of the auto theft situation became so acute of late that the Cambridge authorities asked the district attorney's office for aid in investigating accusations and counter-accusations that have been the talk of the State, that caused feuds and factions in the department and cast an odium on the police force and the city, in the opinion of leading citizens. It was felt that the time had arrived either to snow the reports and innuendoes to be false or to remove offenders from the force.

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts gladly consented to furnish all the assistance in his power. He assigned First Assistant George Stanley Harvey to make a searching inquiry. Mr. Harvey engineered the crusade against the auto theft ring in 1919, and secured more than 150 indictments. On that account the city authorities felt that he was better qualified to tackle the job than the city solicitor, and it was felt that the district attorney's office had better facilities to conduct a secret inquiry.

Mr. Harvey was busy with the probs for two weeks, which is now finished. District Attorney Tufts summoned Mayor Quinn and Chief of Police McBride to his office, where a conference was held. Mr. Harvey made a verbal report of the evidence at this session. He told the Mayor and chief of police that he had excluded all members of the police force from the inquiry, as he wished to keep away from factions and police politics and personalities. He depended on outsiders entirely for his facts.

MAYOR QUINN AROUSED.

He furnished Chief McBride and Mayor Quinn with a list of witnesses whom he had examined, men and women, and pointed out the evidence and its significance. Mr. Tufts then told the Mayor and chief that he and his staff were ready to do anything else that the city desired.

Mayor Quinn is understood to have been highly incensed and to have demanded prompt action. Chief of Police McBride said he would prosecute the offenders mentioned without delay. If the District Court had been open at the close of the conference warrants would have been sought at once. Chief McBride announced that he would hold another conference with Messrs. Tufts and Harvey today after which he would appeal to the court.

The names of certain patrolmen and men of higher rank have been openly handled as alleged confederates of automobile thieves.

CHARGE 'RING' FREED KEOWN

First Alleged Member Arrested Held in $1,000 in Lynn Doctor's Escape

Officials of the district attorney's office of Essex County in Lynn, who arrested Peter Frank, forty-eight years of age, of No. 378 Humphrey street, Swampscott, early today, on a charge of secreting a patient escaped from a hospital for mental diseases, stated there would be wholesale arrests made of members of a ring, who, it is alleged, aided in the two escapes of Dr. James J. Keown, Lynn doctor and lawyer, now at large after escaping from the Danvers Insane Hospital, last week.

The arrest of Frank was made shortly after midnight, by District Attorney S. Howard Donnell, and his assistant Edward F. Flynn, aided by the Swampscott police, who broke down the door of the room, in order to serve the warrant.

Before Judge Edward B. O'Brien, in Lynn District Court, Frank pleaded not guilty today, and was held in $1,000 for trial next Wednesday.

Frank was arrested during the "Red" roundup some months ago. At that time he was represented by Dr. Keown as his attorney, who secured his release.

Frank's arrest today was the first in this State, under the act of 1918, making it an offense to aid in the escape of anyone from a hospital for mental diseases.

KELIHER TO RUN ON TWO PARTY TICKETS

Sheriff John A. Keliher's name will be on both the Republican and the Democratic ballots at the State primary. This became a certainty when the chief officer of the Charles street jail, John J. Casey, filed with the city election commissioners eleven papers for the sheriff's renomination as a Democratic candidate. Other candidates who are against him are Lewis R. Sullivan, Democrat, of the Governor's Council, and Edward G. Graves, Republican.

Edgar J. Leland filed papers for the Republican nomination of James G. Harris as State Secretary. Former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry filed papers for Richard H. Long's nomination as Governor on the Democratic ticket.

'PARASITES' REAP AUTO REWARDS

Amateur Detectives Charge 'Expenses' to Insurance Firms for Finding Stolen Cars

The operation of a band of men working outside the thief gangs in a manner declared legal, but questionable, who "detect" stolen cars and furnish their information to the insurance companies for a price, and called by them "parasites of the reward system," was laid bare today in the theft investigation.

These so-called "detectives" run with their information to the insurance offices, give their information for a price and await the next opportunity.

OWNER "FRAMED" THEFT.

One of the most successful of these men lives in the South End of Boston. He claims according to insurance men, that he has knowledge of the location of many cars which have been stolen. He alleges that he "finds" the cars through detective ability and asks expenses rather than rewards, for the knowledge he has obtained. He makes practically his living out of this traffic and it is a good living, according to the insurance men.

It is claimed that in one instance an affidavit was given a Boston attorney in which the signer, a South Boston merchant, swore that one of these "parasites" came to his office and asked him why he did not have his car stolen and get the $1000 insurance on it.

The merchant at first turned down the offer, but later assented and allowed his car to be "stolen." He paid back the $1000 after his car was returned.

SOLICITOR URGES REWARD.

Police hunger for rewards on stolen cars has gone so far that high city officials have been importuned to send letters to insurance companies demanding rewards be paid.

On file at one of the Boston offices is a series of letters from various officials of Brockton, asking a reward be paid a police official of that city.

Two of these letters are from a city solicitor on behalf of a policeman who, threatened the company unless they "came across" with a reward for the recovery of the stolen car.

The reward was paid but the company has refused by the company was that the

Pine Tree Screen Leads to Plane Smash

Keene, N. H., July 28.—A faulty landing at a flying field here resulted in the demolition of a Curtiss plane piloted by Clarence Blodgett, former army lieutenant and partner of Captain H. E. Whitney, American Ace. Blodgett carried Rupert Robinson, a local man as a passenger. The former sustained a deep laceration under his left eye while the latter was uninjured.

The deceptive appearance of the field from the air occasioned by thick pine trees which enclosed it was responsible for the accident. On landing the wheels glided along the ground only a short distance before crashing into the tree. Several people on the field assisted in extricating the pilot and his passenger from the wreckage.

policeman had done nothing to merit a reward. The car was found abandoned on a highway of the city.

"The bulk of cars recovered by the police, outside Boston, are almost wholly those which have been abandoned on some highway," said an insurance official today. "There is absolutely no reason why rewards should be paid in these instances."

ALL NEW ENGLAND STATES TO RECEIVE BIG SUPPLY OF COAL

FUEL TO BE DIVERTED TO EAST

Fixing of Profits and Labor Peace Expected to Have Beneficial Effect

By International News Service.

Washington, July 28.—The coal situation was regarded as more favorable here today, upon the basis of reports reaching government agencies.

The priority order for coal to New England from tide water points issued late yesterday is expected to care for the New England shortage.

The priority order for coal to the Northwest, which went into effect on Monday, is already giving promise of heavier coal shipments to that region, with indications that the present shortage in Summer shipments to the lake regions may be met before Fall, reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission showed.

The appointment of a committee by Attorney General Palmer to establish profits on bituminous coal is expected also to have a salutary effect upon the situation.

MAY END LABOR STRIFE.

Suggestion, by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, that the operators and miners meet in joint session to settle their difficulties was received here as an indication of prospects of relief in the labor situation.

Officials believe that if the labor troubles can be ironed out by the operators and the miners, the agreements already entered into by the operators and the railroads for the shipment of coal will meet the existing emergency.

The priority order, which is the eleventh of a series the commission has been compelled to issue to break up railway congestion, and relieve alarming coal shortages, will have the affair of embargoing shipments from large coal fields, until the New England fuel crisis is dissipated.

EFFECTIVE AUGUST 2.

The order is a direct result of sequences conveyed to Governors of New England States by President Wilson last week to the effect that the coal shortage is that section, resulting in serious curtailment of industrial activity, would shortly be relieved.

The commission's latest order will become effective August 2, and will remain in force as long as the New England shortage exists. It will result in the movement of 1,250,000 tons of bituminous coal each month from mines in Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia to the ports of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Hampton Roads for transshipment to New England.

Simultaneously with the issuance of the order the Shipping Board announced that it would immediately add more than fifty large ships to the New England coastwise carrying trade, to take care of the heavy shipments shortly to be started as a result of the priority.

At the present time, the Shipping Board has twenty-seven vessels on the New England coal routes, and it is believed certain by officials of the board that the addition of fifty large, fast steamers to this trade will handle the situation effectively.

Up to date, the rate at which bituminous shipments have been transported into New England by rail and water, is short of requirements by 250,000 tons a month.

The commission's lengthy order provides that ten per cent of New York city, suffering most to be vacuated, marking the opening of a campaign to guard the city against an epidemic of smallpox.

Harris H. Dadmun, football captain at Harvard in 1918, and Miss Rita Goodwin, both of Arlington, were married secretly at Hudson Saturday.

The young couple eloped from the Dadmun, at Boone Lake, and are spending the next fortnight at the home of the bride's parents in Arlington. They have known each other since their school days.

The Rev. H. B. Francis, a Baptist clergyman of Hudson, performed the ceremony. Mrs. Milford Goodwin, mother of the bride, forgave the young folks when they announced that they were married.

Dadmun, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. N. Frank Dadmun, of Arlington, has not yet heard from his parents, who are away for the Summer, but they have been notified by telegram of the step their son has taken.

Dadmun was one of Harvard's strongest line p layers in 1915 and 1918, and he captained the team during the latter year. He played football at Arlington High and Tufts before going to Harvard. At the present time he is in the leather business and will probably be a member of the Harvard football coaching staff next fall.

HEALTH OFFICIAL FIRST IN VACCINATION CRUSADE

New York, July 28.—Practicing what he preaches, doing good by example and following several other cowpock inoculations of his own, application, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of New York city, suffered a mild case of it, marking the opening of a campaign to guard the city against an epidemic of smallpox.

SHOOTS HIS WIFE AND KILLS SELF

William Brown of Westerly, a War Veteran, Jealous of Quincy Girl

Westerly, R. I., July 28.—During a fit of insane jealousy, William Brown, thirty years old, a Yankee Division veteran of the war, shot his bride of two months, and then killed himself at their home here at No. 7 Spring street.

Brown, who was calmly smoking a cigarette when he turned the weapon on his young wife, died instantly. Mrs. Brown was rushed to the Lawrence Hospital at New London, where she has a chance for recovery. One of the bullets entered near her heart and the other penetrated her abdomen.

Brown openly accused his wife of unfaithfulness, although his bride has always possessed an unimpeachable reputation. His fancied wrong, coupled with excessive drinking, is said by the authorities to have been responsible for his act.

Three whiskey bottles, the contents of one partly gone, were found on his person when the police rushed to the Brown home following a warning that the young husband had threatened to kill his bride.

Mrs. Brown, before her marriage to the dashing young war veteran two months ago, was Gladys Dunbar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dunbar of No. 258 Water street, Quincy, a highly respected family in that town.

Brown was acting queerly at least ten hours before the shooting. His sister, Mrs. J. M. Burke, went to the home of the young couple several hours before the tragedy to give the bride instruction in cooking. Her sister noticed that he had been drinking and his language became so offensive that she left the house and went to her parents to whom she reported what had occurred.

The young war veteran later appeared at his parents' home on John street, but he received his mother in the yard.

His father was in a garage in the rear of the house. Exhibiting a .32-calibre revolver, Brown is said to have declared to his mother, "Well, Ma, see what I have here. Gladys is crooked. I am going to kill her. See how it works."

Then, it is said, the weapon at a picture in the room and shot it down. The mother fled and the first several shots after her, one imbedding itself in the door.

The young veteran's father heard the shots, and together with his wife, reentered the home and tried to pacify the youth. He had by this time worked himself into a nervous frenzy and refused to be pacified. During the pleading of his parents he fell, shouting that he was going home to kill his bride.

Templeton, July 28.—An epidemic of anthrax may be precipitated as a result of the cowpock inoculations, stripping bare the carcasses of nine of a herd of 15 cows, that died in pasture from what is believed to be the dreaded disease. Exhibiting 8 cows were owned by the Hospital Cottage at Templeton. A report spirited shreds of flesh have been scattered by the dogs and foxes over many pastures in Worcester county.

Her Own Home Broken, Will 'Mend' Others

Chicago, July 28.—Mrs. Daniel F. Sullivan is going to be a "mender of broken homes," although she revealed today that her work in giving happiness to others had broken her own home forever.

In her action for divorce she established the fact that her wealthy husband was at first interested in her charitable work, but later became peeved by it and then deserted her. He objected to their luxurious home being turned into a nursery, where frecuently as many as fifty waifs received comfort and health under her guidance and care.

Mrs. Sullivan started with five waifs when she decided to take the suffering tots of poor parents into her home. The love of the work came upon her while she was seeking a suitable memorial for her son, McKinzie Lowndes.

When she first took the five little ones into her home, Mr. Sullivan showed considerable enthusiasm in the project. As the scope of the work grew, they planned together to make their home a permanent institution of love and unselfishness for others.

But it meant time and labor and sacrifice of some of the comforts in the household for its own members. The novelty of the thing wore off for Mr. Sullivan, and it became monotonous for him. As the scope of the enterprise grew it became more dishonored by it and then deserted her. He objected to their luxurious home being turned into a nursery, where frecuently as many as fifty waifs received comfort and health under her guidance and care.

Finally Mrs. Sullivan received a telephone call from her husband asking her to meet him for dinner downtown. She waited for him in vain.

On her return she found a note placed in her dresser, telling her that he had gone away. She heard of him in London and in Cuba. Two or three times he returned for brief intervals. He has not been home for a year.

Now the plan for making the memorial a charity on a grand scale has failed, but the "mender of broken homes" will strive on a smaller scale. She has asked for substantial alimony and will use all she can spare to give happiness to those by whom she is well known and widely loved.

GOURAUD GIRL IS UNKNOWN IN U.S.

Friends of Prince's Former Wife Are Surprised to Learn of Second Child

New York, July 29.—Yolanda Gouraud, a new figure in the tangles of the Aimee Crocker Gouraud, Prince Miskinoff, and Yvonne Gouraud loan, has come to the notice of interested persons in the United States through a cable from Paris announcing her death.

The existence of a Yolanda had not been known here until the message was received. Persons at once sought to identify her with Princess Yereln, born in April, 1915. The Paris dispatch said that Yolanda was seven years old. This would fix the discrepancy of two years between her age and that of the Princess Yereln.

Mrs. Aimee Crocker Gouraud was legally separated from Prince Miskinoff after an interesting legal action in which Yvonne, foster daughter of Mrs. Gouraud, played an important part. The court decided that the foster daughter must remain in the custody of Mrs. Gouraud.

"If you are in love with Yvonne," said Mrs. Gouraud, "I will be perfectly happy to divorce you and let you take her."

Says Profiteers Are Juggling Food

Washington, July 28.—The high cost of living has been "very materially reduced in some lines," Howard E. Figg, special assistant to Attorney-General Palmer, in charge of the campaign against the high cost of living, said today.

Price reduction has been most noticeable in wearing apparel and kindred lines, Figg said. The campaign in other directions, he admitted, has not been completely successful, but efforts of the department are concentrating their efforts on these lines.

"In food we have not seen the reductions we should have had," Figg said. "This has been caused largely by the inability of the producer to get his stuff on the market because of railroad tieups in various sections.

"At present time there has been some profiteering, and it looks as though there is collusion between merchants, middlemen and others in certain lines to keep prices as high as possible.

"While there is some profiteering of an involuntary nature we are trying to get the offenders wherever possible under the Lever act and other legislation."

Mr. Figg quoted official figures to show that while the total cost of the campaign in his department so far amounts to $56,000, or about $13,000 a month, the fines collected from convicted profiteers aggregate $208,077, and the jail sentences imposed and being served run more than nine years and six months.

The largest individual jail sentence so far is one year and one month and two days. There have been 1,958 prosecutions under the Lever act.

WEST POINTERS DEFENDED

Cadets Passed Collegians in Stiff Army Examination, Says Colonel Shartle

West Point education versus college education, the argument started by President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard and certain army officers, was given new lease of life today by Lieut.-Colonel Charles H. Shartle.

Colonel Shartle, who is chief of staff at army headquarters, declared the superiority of West Point training was demonstrated in the recent examinations of men for National Guard commissions. West Pointers have a general knowledge of affairs than men trained in the colleges, he said.

Colonel Shartle averred that men coming here for the examinations from colleges and high schools know little of history, very few geography, while those who had been cadets were well grounded in such matters.

"The men who exhibit little good literature the average man is reading," continued the army officer. "Ask him if he has read anything he is lost. Very few can quote a line of poetry or tell what a poet stands for.

"Ask the average man from the civilian school what United States border Mexico, and he will know. Ask him the water route between New York and San Francisco and he will need time to reflect.

"The average man also neglects the value of the newspaper as an educational agency. He skims the paper. He does not read it.

"These examinations prove that education at West Point serves a man better than ordinary training in any other school."

WAR ISSUE UP TO RUSSIA

France and Britain Reported in Accord on Policy for Peace

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 28. — Unconfirmed rumors today are that a revolution has broken out at Posen, West Prussia. Posen was formerly German territory, but was awarded to Poland by the peace conference. The Russian Bolshevik army, sweeping into Galicia, has captured the cities of Brody and Tarnopol, according to a Soviet War Office communique.

By International News Service.

London, July 28.—The question of peace or war in Eastern Europe was put squarely up to Russia today by the allies. France and Great Britain are in complete accord in the new Russian policy.

Their agreement was sealed at the Boulogne conference of Premier Lloyd George and Premier Millerand, which ended last night. A note has been dispatched to Moscow notifying the Soviet government that Russia must consent to a general peace parley or the allies as participants if peace is to be concluded with Poland and the other states bordering on Russia.

The allies fear that the Russians might attempt to inflict a "Brest Litovsk peace" unless the allied statesmen are present to protect the interests of Poland and the smaller states.

It is understood that the allies have been influenced by the slowness of the Russians in ceasing hostilities following their acceptance of Polish's plea for an armistice. There was a brief lull in fighting after the exchange of prelimenary communications between Warsaw and Moscow last Saturday, but this has been followed by news of fresh advances by the Russian army on the Polish front. The Soviet war office, instead of opening armistice negotiations at once, announced a postponement until July 30.

France is insistent upon full protection for Poland under any circumstances, if peace negotiations open or if war is continued.

Reveals French Agreement to Enter Negotiations

By International News Service.

Paris, July 28.—France has finally consented to send to a peace parley at London to discuss the question of the Soviet government, but only on condition that Russia meet the allies on the new note which the allies have dispatched to Moscow. This note calls for active participation by the Soviet in the peace parley.

The all important news that France has to take part in the proposed peace conference was made public in Paris until after the return today of Premier Millerand from Boulogne.

Instead of demanding that the Soviet government first acknowledge the Russian national debt before a peace parley is held at London, the French apparently now side with the allies in the situation, including guaranty of the Russian debt, the recognition of the government and other questions, be discussed simultaneously.

France will insist, however, upon reserving liberty of action along with her allies on the question of recognizing the Bolshevik Russia. Another important result of the Boulogne conference is that France probably will not insist that American representation is necessary at the proposed general conference in London. Officials of the French Foreign Office had previously stated that France would not enter a general parley unless the United States did likewise.

The Soviet government of Russia announced in a wireless dispatch today that Bolshevik troops "will occupy Bielostok and Suwalki before an armistice is concluded with Poland as a guarantee." Bielostok is 110 miles northeast of Warsaw on the Warsaw-Vilna railway. Suwalki is seventy miles north of Bielostok, ten miles from the frontier of East Prussia.

Poles Continue Retreat as Russians Attack

Paris, July 28.—With the exception of a brief truce that followed Soviet Russia's acceptance of the Polish plan for permission to send a diplomatic commission, fighting appears to have been going on fiercely and continuously on the Russo-Polish line.

Latest communiques from Warsaw show the Polish armies are continuing to retire under the steady pressure of the Red legions.

In curious contrast with this news is a statement attributed to General Henry, of the French General Staff, after a visit to the front. He is quoted as saying:

"The critical moment has passed. We need only have confidence."

The French general said the Polish troops are holding well and "will continue to hold."

Lawrence, July 28.—A poison mystery is being investigated by the local police, it is learned. A man accuses his wife of a deliberate attempt to take his life by administering poison in food. The principals in the case reside on Pine street.

The wife is suspected of having put Paris green in some pancakes and serving them to her husband. The man visited Dr. T. J. Daly of Bradford street and, after examination, was sent to the police station.

Further treatment became necessary in the work room of the Glover drug store. Emetics were administered and it is said the victim narrowly escaped death. A chemical analysis is being made of the pancakes. Neither City Marshal Timothy O'Brien of the local police nor Dr. Daly will make statements regarding the case.

BREAD BURNS IN BAKE SHOP FIRE

Thousands of Loaves Destroyed in Brockton, Also Machinery

First Leprosy Tests Prove Negative

The first tests upon the two lepers treated with chaulugia oil at Penikese Island have proved negative as far as showing that the disease produced degeneration of the nervous system, according to City Epidemiologist M. Victor Safford, chairman of the special board of five physicians who are making the examinations.

The results, while gratifying, will not be conclusive, Dr. Safford stated, until reports are received from the laboratory on the eye and bacteriological tests. A week must elapse before these are received. If all reports prove negative the patients will be released.

Think Women Smuggle Gems to Aid Soviet

New York, July 28.—Believing that women are being employed to dispose of smuggled gems, thereby realizing vast sums for the Russian Soviet, Assistant Federal Attorney Walker began a systematic investigation of the smuggling charges upon which Nils Jacobson, a seaman, and Mitchell Saffron of No. 752 Ocean avenue, Brooklyn, are being held.

Saffron, Mr. Walker learned, lives with Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the "Soviet Ambassador," and is a clerk in the embassy's headquarters here.

The connection of women in the case was indicated when Anna Kolmann was invited to Mr. Walker's office. As to her exact status, Mr. Walker refused to offer any details. It was learned, however, that the Federal agencies are working on the theory that for more than a year gems have been brought into the country and sold by women to aid the Russian cause.

The prosecution said that the case is far more important than a mere smuggling attempt, and that he expects it to develop into a "widespread conspiracy."

Jacobson was arrested upon the arrival of the steamship Stockholm, a week ago, and he left a bundle in the custody of the purser. Part of the contents of the package that was given him before the vessel sailed Saturday, he set told to deliver it to a "man who would ask for the glasses." Jacobson was arrested before he was approached by the man.

Saffron was arrested two days later when he appeared at a rooming house in Manhattan, to which Jacobson had been directed. It was not known until yesterday what Saffron's connection was, but when he gave his address as No. 752 Ocean avenue, Brooklyn, it was recognized as the address at which Martens resides.

PUBLIC WARNED BY PONZI

Calls Speculators Who Buy Un' matured Notes 'Money Sharks'; Pelletier Names Auditor

Charles Ponzi, head of the Securities Exchange Company, today warned six months to beware of speculators who are buying up his 50 per cent-in-forty-five-days notes which have not matured, at their principal value and holding them until the date of recall. He alleges that such persons are gambling on the "nervous tension of the public."

The young financier continued to pay out thousands of dollars today on matured notes and the principal on notes which had not matured. He announces that this policy will continue and that any person who desires to obtain the money loaned him may do so on demand.

PELLETIER NAMES AUDITOR.

District Attorney Pelletier today made public the name of the auditor who is to examine the books of the Securities Exchange Company. It is not known when the work of auditing the books of the company will start.

Ponzi has issued the following statement:

"In conformity with my agreement made with District-Attorney Pelletier on Monday I have, in so far as it was humanly possible with the clerical force on hand, paid every obligation presented at my offices yesterday in the form of notes issued by me during the past 45 days. All of the notes which had matured were paid at their face value. All notes which had not matured were redeemed by me for the original sum. This was in accord with my advertisement in this papers.

CALLS THEM MONEY SHARKS.

"The amount paid out by me during the day amounted to several hundred thousands of dollars. I shall continue payments today on the same basis, and every day until all of my obligations have been presented.

"I learned early in the day, that speculators were purchasing notes that had not matured, from people in line, for the purpose of holding the notes until maturity and collecting in full, with fifty per cent. interest.

"While I have no control over these notes, which are negotiable, I feel that I should call the attention of the public to this attempt to speculate on their holdings and let them see the inconsistency of giving a profit to money sharks who are willing to gamble on the nervous tension of the public."

BEGS HUSBAND TO RETURN

Niantic, Ct., Man Left Wife and Six Children to Come to Boston

New London, Ct., July 28.—Fearful that harm may come to her missing husband who has gone to Boston, Mrs. Louis Cunningham of Niantic is appealing to him through the newspapers to return to her and their six children.

Cunningham has not been seen since last Saturday, when he drew his pay at a local shipyard. Shortly afterward a letter signed by him arrived at local newspaper offices announcing he intended a desperate act.

Mrs. Cunningham is in financial straits and on the brink of nervous breakdown through worry over her husband's disappearance. She has written him the following open letter:

"My Dear Husband—If you could only be home a few minutes and see us you would never leave us. Saturday baby was sick—very sick—in my arms all day, and I worried so about you, and at night baby said it is time for papa to come home.

"I told him you would come soon, then, but we watched and waited all night for you; we prayed and cried all through the night. We found your keys and found that you had taken your revolver and other things and since then there has been a prayer on my lips every minute of the night and day for God to take care of you and make you well and send you home to us.

"God knows we love you so, and miss you. Oh, so much. We got word you were going to do something dreadful and I thought we all would die of grief. The boy and Lloyd said, if home something will take his gun and will not let him use it." Ada screamed and cried until she had a fit and fell against the parlor table and broke the lamp and hurt her so. We heed the garden and fed the rabbits. If you can't come home, please, dear, don't harm yourself. We will all die of grief if you do. We don't want money or you to work—we just want you home so badly.

"My mother says Lou is the best man in the world and he will come back to his little ones.

"I baked and sold a lot of doughnuts and have earned all we have had since you left. I will do the best I can for the children. I love you better than anyone in the world and the children next. Baby says: 'God bless Pop and send him home.' We all say that over and over. Please for the children's sakes, don't be rash. They love and need you. You will be so welcome if you will come home. We love you so.

"God bless you.

"Your loving wife,

"GRACE."

U. S. Milliners Have Invaded Paris

New York, July 28.—American modistes have begun an invasion of Paris, a permanent headquarters of the Retail Millinery Association of America having been established in the New Flatiron Building of Paris, No. 7 Rue de Mets, according to an announcement of the association here.

Ever since the Paris modistes brought about the refusal of the $5,000 gift bat by American milliners for Mme. Deschanel, wife of the President of France, there has been a demand by American milliners for competition with Paris.

BUYERS WATCH 'THEIR STEPS'

Extravagant Buying Decreasing, Says Boston Reserve Bank Report on Trade

Extravagant buying is decreasing, according to a review of business conditions in New England, issued today by Frederic H. Curtiss of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

"That transportation difficulties constitute one of the most important factors in the present credit and industrial situation in New England is becoming more and more clear," he says. "It is generally believed and conceded," says the review, "that speculation in commodities, which was unquestionably one of the prime factors in the rapid rise of prices during the past year, has to a very large degree been eliminated from the channels of trade.

"The public is recovering from the disease of extravagant buying which afflicted it so acutely a year ago. Labor is becoming more sensible of changing conditions.

"Perhaps most important of all, no legitimate, well established business has suffered from lack of adequate banking accommodation as a result of a more discriminating use of credit and the influence of high discount rates.

"It is the wheels of transportation which now need acceleration and it is the transportation problem which must be attacked more vigorously and earnestly than any other; and although this is apparent the country over, the evidence of merchants and manufacturers in this territory indicates how acute the problem is in New England, which produces no coal whatever and so few of the raw materials upon which its great industries and the economic life of its people are principally dependent."

Purchasing power in communities where textile and shoe factories have curtailed is diminishing, and a corollary of this has been greater efficiency on the part of employes at work, the review declares.

The statement says that labor is less insistent in its demands, being mindful of widespread curtailment in mills, and points out that there has been a marked decrease in strikes.

Reports received from twenty-three department stores in the district shows that business has been exceedingly active, says the review, the figures of June sales for seven Boston stores showed an increase of nearly 25 per cent. over May, and for the sixteen outside stores a gain of 28.5 per cent.

LAWRENCE CAR THIEF SLAIN

Railroad Guard Shot in Leg in Attempt to Round Up Freight Looters

Lawrence, July 28.—Biago Rapisardi, mill worker, one of a gang of freight car thieves, was shot and instantly killed, and Arthur H. Aycough, thirty-five, of 90 Charles street, Wakefield, a Boston & Maine Railroad detective, was shot twice during a running fight in the Lawrence freight yards early today.

The encounter followed an attempt of three car thieves to loot a box car on the Osgood street siding, which, with others, was being guarded by Aycough and Arthur C. Cole, of Malden another railroad officer.

Shortly after midnight three skulking figures appeared near the car. The approach was witnessed by Cole and Aycough, who were but a few feet away.

DETECTIVE IS SHOT.

As they were in the act of prying off the car door, Aycough shouted. His warning was met with the report of a .38-calibre revolver. Aycough fell to the ground wounded, a bullet wound in the left leg. A second shot was fired at the thieves, and took effect in the same leg close to the first wound.

Aycough, though painfully wounded, attempted to apprehend the thieves without returning the fire, but his commands to halt were unheeded.

In the darkness he opened fire to the direction of his assailants and fired one shot and the unidentified man, still clinging to the door of the car, fell to the ground mortally wounded. The bullet had pierced his heart.

TWO EFFECT ESCAPE.

Cole reached his wounded partner's side shortly after the latter fell to the ground. He pursued the other two members of the trio, who had taken flight when their companion was shot. They effected their escape in the yard, Cole being hindered in his pursuit by the darkness.

Aycough was removed to the Lawrence General Hospital, where physicians, after operating, announced that he will recover.

The detectives were placed on guard by police officials of the road following a series of freight car thefts in the local yards. A constant watch has been kept on outgoing and arriving freight in an attempt to apprehend the gang responsible for the breaks.

The fatality today is believed by the police to have resulted in the death of one of the men who have carried on the wholesale thefts.

GIRL "AIDING" ORPHANAGE DUPES LAWRENCE STORES

Lawrence, July 28.—The local police are searching for a much-wanted girl who said she was "Helen Collins or No. 42 Maple street." She is charged with having duped the orphanage here and succeeded in getting some merchandise from a Lawrence street store. The sisters at the orphan asylum say they know of no such person. She also allowed the choice of merchandise, including articles of underwear, in one store room between the toys and the cashier's desk, without sureness or irritation.

LAWRENCE ARREST YOUTH IN 'TRUNK' DEATH

Harvest Worker Taken at Lawrence, Kan., Disclaims Knowledge of Girl's Death

New York, July 28.—The arrest of a man answering the description of Eugene Le Roy of Detroit, sought as the slayer of his wife, whose body was shipped to New York in a trunk, was reported to the police here from Lawrence, Kas. The man was working as a harvest hand, it was said.

When taken in custody, the prisoner identified himself as Dillard Ashley of Sadler, Ky., and said he could identify himself through an army discharge and other papers at Omaha.

The nearest today in New York, Detroit, Chicago and all other directions to which clews in the mystery have pointed, was directed toward the recovery of a second trunk, which the police believe exists, and which they are convinced will be found to contain the vital organs of the murdered woman.

Steps were taken today to prevent Le Roy slipping across the border and into Mexico, when officials in every border town were notified to keep a sharp lookout for a man answering his description.

BABY'S AUCTION CALLED OFF

New York Mother Who Asks $250 for Child Gives It to Widower

New York, July 28.—Baby Margaret McNulty, who was offered at public sale Sunday for $250, has been withdrawn from the market and went to James F. Sweetman as a gift.

The mother, Mrs. Catherine McNulty, retains an undivided interest in the child's affection and will have permission to see her whenever she wishes.

Mrs. McNulty, whose husband died recently, offered her baby for sale when she found herself unable to earn an adequate living for either herself or the child. She hoped the money she asked for the baby would give her an opportunity to rest and regain her health and, at the same time, she would know that Margaret was receiving proper care.

She changed her mind about the sale and before the first of the score of would-be purchasers arrived at her home she had given the child to Sweetman.

Margaret was in the Sweetman family once before. She came back to her mother when Mrs. Sweetman died. At that time Mrs. McNulty feared that Sweetman would be so occupied with the care of his own motherless child that he could not give Margaret adequate care.

MARBLEHEAD TAX RATE JUMPS FROM $27 TO $30

U. S. SHIPS HELD UP FOR DEBT

Denmark Detains Merchant Vessels for Failure to Meet Bills for Supplies

Copenhagen, July 28.—A dispatch from Gothenburg to the Aftonbladet today gives further details of the plight of the two United States Shipping Board vessels Wallowa and Thala, the first information regarding which was exclusively cabled to Universal Service Monday night.

The two ships are in Gothenburg harbor for failure to meet various liabilities, the dispatch says. Four seals have been affixed to the Wallowa by the port authorities. The vessel seems to have incurred debts to the amount of 7,000 kroner in food, coal and other supplies.

The Thala is said to have defaulted for 800 tons of sulphur to the value of 250,000 kroner.

SERVICE MEN TO STAY AT WEST ROXBURY

Service men, patients at the West Roxbury Hospital, will not be moved to Worcester, as was intended. This information was forwarded to Colonel Edward L. Logan, State Legion commander, from the surgeon-general at Washington, who stated that the Worcester property was selected before he knew of the opposition to it. The executive committee of the legion tonight will name a special committee to call on Mayor Peters and request that service men be permitted to remain at West Roxbury Hospital, which is owned by the city.

VON SIMONS NOW CALLS BOLSHEVISM "POISON"

London, July 28.—Dr. Walter von Simons, German Foreign Secretary, has repudiated praises of Bolshevism that occurred in his speech to the National Assembly Monday, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Berlin. He was compelled to change his attitude by political circumstances. In his revised views he calls Bolshevism "a dangerous poison." It is understood he saved his official position by a "humiliating apology."

SULPHURIC ACID TANK BURSTS

Firemen Prevent Destruction of Atlantic Avenue Car Tracks and Wire Connections

A huge tank of sulphuric acid, consigned to the Jennie Manufacturing Company, South Boston, and owned by the Merrimac Chemical Company, No. 148 State street, burst in front of No. 71 Atlantic avenue, causing the entire waterfront. A still alarm was sounded by a citizen. Engine 8, Ladder 1 and Protective No. 1 responding.

The leg started when a soldering in the rear of the tank wagon parted leaving a trail of acid for several yards along the avenue. Clouds of smoke went up. Immediately upon arrival of the fire apparatus, two hose lines were turned on to dilute the powerful liquid.

Fearing lest the stream would flow into the manholes and burn away telephone as other wire connections, firemen diverted the acid into a nearby cesspool. In the meantime heavy ash embankments were built around manholes in the vicinity.

A detail of police was assigned to divert traffic to other channels and the area was roped off. Fear was expressed that the acid would eat away the Unis Freight car rails and a steady stream of water was poured on the tracks. After considerable difficulty members of the department succeeded in locking the tank leak by running sand down a plank into the hole through which the acid escaped.

The wagon orginally contained 300 gallons. Damage is estimated at $500.

Claims Children Get Drunk on 'Jakey'

Lawrence, July 28.—Complaint has been made to the police that the castaway "Jakey" bottles containing dregs of the beverage are causing cases of drunkenness among children.

Mary Pigis of No. 71 Valley street, revealed that children in the vicinity of her home were "tipsy" as a result of picking up discarded bottles containing small amounts of Jamaica ginger. She stated that the passageway in the rear of her home is a habitual "Jakey" drinking place for the children, who are often left in a helpless state.

CHARGE PLOT TO WRECK UNION

Railways Plan to Adopt Terrorist Methods, Declares Scott

Washington, July 28.—Directors of the principal railway systems of the country are waiting only for the signing of the existing agreement between the government and railroads on September 1 to inaugurate union-wrecking policy of terrorist methods, according to John Scott, secretary of the National Association of Railway Employes.

Mr. Scott declared that the "conspiracy" against railroad labor included an attempt to deprive the men of the wage scales and working conditions that had been granted under government control, especially the eight-hour working day.

"Of course such an attempt is entirely illegal," said Mr. Scott, "but what do the railroads care for that? The result may be a temporary breakdown in all forms of railway transportation.

Carrying water to the ocean!

MRS. J—— of Newton has always bought her coats at Filene's.

She informed us laughingly the other day: "You know all coats have always come from Filene's even during the two years when I was living in Paris. I still sent over to you for coats."

To send from the Fashion Center of the Universe to Filene's for a coat may sound like carrying water to the ocean.

But on second thoughts it is not strange. Paris can not be beat for daring and originality in the creation of new styles. Paris never has and probably never will be.

But tailoring is another thing. We have always had much difficulty in selling original Paris models to American women, because they do not fit their figures.

And when Paris style is modified to American tastes with Filene tailoring to give it form and finish—it is little to be wondered at that Filene customers once they get the habit are satisfied with nothing else—even if they live in Paris!

Senator Pomerene Urges Kenyon to Continue Investigation of Campaign Costs

Dayton, O., July 28.—"I have already written Senator Kenyon, chairman of the campaign expenditures investigating committee, urging him to continue its sessions throughout the campaign," Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio announced following a conference with Governor Cox, Democratic presidential nominee.

Senator Pomerene told Governor Cox he had information regarding Republican campaign contributions which, in his opinion, warranted investigation by the committee.

Asked as to the statement that Republican National Chairman Will H. Hays has set a limit of $1,000 on contributions, Senator Pomerene said Republicans were generally well supplied with money while the Democrats have a "red ink" balance.

"I feel that the lavish use of money in campaigns should be controlled, and I believe the present hearings of the Senate committee will result in the passing of legislation in the next Congress to bring about such control. It may even be necessary to amend the Federal constitution."

The Ohio Senator said that he had not yet heard from Senator Kenyon in reply to his letter, but that he had every reason to believe the committee would continue its sessions.

"Senator Pomerene and I discussed practically all the important topics which has been before the Senate recently," said Governor Cox. The conference today completed the Governor's schedule of appointments until after he has finished his speech of acceptance.

"I expect to start dictating my speech at once," said the Governor. He said he had written out one section of the speech in longhand, as he wished to be particularly careful in its phrasing.

Governor Cox received a telegram from the Democratic State committee of Montana inviting him to make a speaking tour of the State and painting a hopeful future of Democratic prospects in that State.

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement

ASK MR. FIXIT

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have heard if a driver shuts off his engine, and used it to obtain a breaking effect it would probably result in having a muffled blown out when he turned it on. Is that correct? I am writing the bill. Is this correct and would using the cut-out tend to lessen the probability of the blowing off of the muffler?

Is 50 to 60 m. p. h. too fast to run a 1919 Ford that is in good condition?

Does a Ford use approximately the same amount of gasoline at 25 miles per hour regardless of the speed at which it runs? I mean would it use the same amount in covering a mile while traveling at 15 miles per hour, as it would if run over the same mile traveling at 35 miles per hour?

Does not the use of a cut-out increase mileage. In regard to answering the questions, Reading's see these questions answered in Wednesday's American. J. P. S. New Bedford, Mass.

There would probably be no danger of blowing off the muffler. It would ruin it even if it were dirty. However, using cut-out in this case would be a good thing. The speed of the car on the road depends altogether on the condition of the road and the driver's own judgment. Would say 35 or 40 miles is plenty fast enough. The most economical speed for a given distance would probably be about 25 miles per hour. Using cut-out has no effect on the mileage if the muffler is properly designed. Many cars nowadays have no muffler, as the cylinders of late muffler have very little back pressure.

Dear Sir: In regards to the answer in the Wednesday issue of the American. My motorcycle-ignition was broke down about a month ago. I took it out and had it fixed up. The distributor is connected with the generator by two small gears. Would you please let me know if it makes any difference which way you put it back on again? I have put it back on so that the gear with the longest teeth on it meshes with the gear and have only weak spark on the plugs. Also pitted cylinders with gas and other soil and there is no explosion. Thanking you in advance. F. S., East Dedham, Mass.

You have probably put your distributor back incorrectly. See if the timing gears are timed correctly. See if the gears are marked with punch marks. Both having single punch should mean between two teeth each having a punch mark. We think you will find these marks all right on close examination. This is without doubt why your car does not start, because it is at present improperly timed.

PETTIBONE IS CALLED 'JUDAS'

Vermont State Attorney Flays Alleged Poisoner in Closing Plea to Jury

the Bennington County Court, was given to the jury today following further arguments by Attorney James K. Batchelder, counsel for the defense and Attorney General Frank C. Archibald for the government.

State Attorney Graves, describing the alleged crime, said:

"It would be difficult to contemplate a more cold blooded murder. There were no extenuating circumstances.

"We can almost respect a man who shoots another in the heat of passion for what he considers just provocation. But here you have a man who cowardly took advantage of the trust of his wife. A man who coldly plotted her death, gave her poison and then planted the kiss of Judas on her lips.

"And then what did he do? Within two weeks of this dispicable murder he enjoyed a joy ride on an undertaker's ambulance with the woman whom we present to you as the motive for the crime."

Attorney General Archibald in his unfinished plea to the jury scorned the defence argument that the confessions were dragged from him through "third degree" methods. He ridiculed the contention that the accused was weak from an operation. "He was so weak that he placed his own life at the mercy of the State's," said the prosecutor, yet he was not too weak to make love or to drive an automobile for miles and miles."

DEMANDS ACQUITTAL.

Attorney Joseph J. Jones argued for a finding of not guilty by trying to show the unreliability of the two confessions which it is alleged Pettibone made to the State Attorney and to Attorney-General Archibald, and in which it is charged he admitted he gave her strychnine in a dose of salts.

"How unnatural," he said, "how preposterous to contemplate that a human being is so overcome by the voice of conscience that he admits facts which he must know will send him to the chair and yet had a conscience so mute that he can, without hesitation, administer a fatal dose of poison to his wife and then, go to bed and sleep."

He attacked the third degree grilling which the defence declares Pettibone received at the hands of the detectives.

The accused man seemed to be little disturbed by his denunciation at the hands of his prosecutors. He appeared less nervous than at any time since his trial began.

Strong 'Kick' Wrecks Keg and Coal Bin

Winchendon, July 28.—Residents of East street were startled by an explosion, which upon investigation was found to have been caused by the mistake of a home brewer in adding raisins and one yeast cake too much to his week-end concoction.

Total damage was the destruction of one coal bin in which the keg was stored; the loss of the keg and laceration of the feelings of the compounder.

CHARGES PLOT IN PAPER CRISIS

Senator King of Utah Urges Prosecution of Profiteering Newsprint Manufacturers

Washington, July 28.—Senator Williar. King of Utah called upon Attorney-General Palmer and urged him to start prosecution of large manufacturers of newsprint in the United States. These manufacturers, Senator King charged, are engaged in a conspiracy to keep the price of print paper at an excessive figure, with the result that many small publishers are being crowded to the wall.

"During my recent trip through the West," said Senator King, "I was urged by many publishers to seek such a prosecution. There is every reason to believe that newspaper publishers are profiteering, and many small publishers told me they were facing ruin because of the price of paper, and that frequently they were permitted to purchase only a few pounds at a time at any price."

Attorney-General Palmer took the matter under advisement and will investigate conditions before taking any legal action, Senator King said.

COX CAMPAIGN IS OPENED

Party Leaders Confer With Democratic National Chairman in New York

Washington, July 28.—With the conference between the new Democratic national chairman, George H. White, and party leaders in New York today and the formal transfer of the party organization's reins here, tomorrow, the business end of Governor Cox's campaign will be put into motion.

W. G. McAdoo, President Wilson's son-in-law and unsuccessful aspirant for the Democratic nomination, was here yesterday professing his willingness to "do all possible for the Cox candidacy." He left with the retiring national chairman, Homer G. Cummings, to meet the new chairman in New York.

The few hours Mr. McAdoo spent in Washington were given over to conferences with his close political associates at the Washington Hotel. He saw Robert W. Woolley, interstate commerce commissioner, and Joseph Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency. He did not call at the White House.

Senator William H. King, of Utah, one of the original Cox men in the San Francisco convention, aimed to participate in Thursday's festivities. He confirmed the story that Governor Cox was not planning a "league without reservations" fight.

HIGH PAY DRAWS MEN TO FARM

Enough Labor to Harvest Bumper Crops, $6 to $9 Being Paid

By International News Service.

Washington, July 28.—Shortage of farm labor is no longer a menace to bumper crops, according to reports today to the bureau of farm government of the Department of Agriculture. The situation has been relieved materially and there will be adequate labor for harvesting. It is pointed out that the acreage planted was limited because of a labor shortage, but that exceptional crops have offset this.

Representatives of farmers here are not rejoicing over the labor situation, however. J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, today declared that farmers are but temporarily relieved.

"Regardless of recent apparent improvement in the farm help situation, scarcity of labor continues to be the limiting factor in agricultural production," Howard said. "The high wages offered for harvest hands in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and other heavy grain-growing States of the Middle West have succeeded in bringing forth a force of transient workers. These men get $6 and $9 a day and board."

Higher prices are the only permanent solution of the farm labor shortage, according to Howard. He declares that unless food prices go higher farmers cannot compete with the cities for year-round help.

He further declares that higher food prices would send a wave of labor back to the farms.

Reports to the bureau of markets of the Department of Agriculture do not indicate, however, any general tendency toward an increase in food prices. There is a decline shown in the prices of many farm products and experts in the bureau look for greater decreases as the harvests are gathered. Imports are cutting into the market in some commodities and causing lower prices levels.

5 CONGRESSMEN FILE PAPERS

Speaker Gillett, Luce, Walsh, Phelan and Dallinger Seek Renomination

Frederick H. Gillett of Springfield, Speaker of the House, and four other Massachusetts Congressmen have filed renomination papers with the Secretary of State. But one Democrat is included in the number.

Following are the list of incumbents who seek return to Congress:

Speaker Gillett seeks the Republican renomination from the Second District; Robert Luce, Waltham, Republican, from the Thirteenth District; Joseph Walsh, New Bedford, Republican, Sixteenth District; Frederick Dallinger, Cambridge, Republican, Eighth District, and Michael F. Phelan, Democrat, Lynn, from the Seventh District.

James P. Ingraham of Peabody got into the Fifth Councilor District by filing for the Republican nomination from that district. State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell of Medford filed for renomination, and Charles E. Goodspeed of Ipswich filed for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Essex County.

John C. Slayton of West Melrose filed for the Republican nomination for the Governor's Council from the Fourth District.

Sheriff John A. Keliher of Suffolk County filed with the city election commissioners for renomination on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. Other candidates for the position of sheriff are Governor's Councillor Lewis R. Sullivan, Democrat, and Edward G. Graves, Republican.

Papers for the nomination of James G. Harris for secretary of State on the Republican ticket were filed. Former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry filed additional papers for Richard H. Long's nomination for Governor on the Democratic ticket.

BOSTON MAN SAILS FOR AFRICA WITH HIS FAMILY

Marshall Murphree of this city, with his wife and five months' old daughter, Verna, left for Kimtall, Rhodesia, Africa, today. They sailed on the Fort Victoria for Liverpool, and from there they will proceed to Africa, as missionaries under the Methodist Episcopal Board of Foreign Missions. Mr. Murphree received the degree of Bachelor of Religious Education from Boston University this June. Kenneth M. Harkness and his wife, of South Dakota, are sailing on the same boat, for Portuguese East Africa.

Simple Setting Features Coolidge Notification

Northampton, July 28.—Probably never have simpler ceremonies been held, commemorating so important an event, than those which took place at Allen Field, here, when Governor Calvin Coolidge was formally notified of his nomination as a Republican candidate for the vice-presidency.

"I formally have received notification," said the Governor, "and formally I accept."

The event was New England of New England, in character, in setting, in the personalities of its chief characters. President Emeritus of Smith College L. Clark Seelye spoke words of old Pilgrim truth and substance.

The Governor, terse, man of few words, was diffident as a school boy, as his praises were said by speaker after speaker. Behind him, gentleman of the old school, his father, Colonel John C. Coolidge, looked like the rock-ribbed Vermont, sterling, Pilgrim in type. And, all about, were the New England hills, wide and vast, while above, modern invention, an aeroplane circled, while Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who occupied an important place on the platform, pronounced audibly, for all to hear, that "that aeroplane was interrupting the whole meeting."

ROSES FROM HARDING.

Many were the little graces of the Governor's day of notification. In the first place, just a little after noon, came a huge bundle of red roses from the Republican candidate for the Presidency, Senator Warren G. Harding, and Mrs. Harding for Mrs. Coolidge.

Then the arrangements in Northampton. Now if you wish to know if his fellow citizens love the quiet man at the State House, all you have to do is drop into Northampton and find out that every cent of the expenses of notification was paid by the local committee of his fellow townsmen. Ordinarily it is the custom for the national committee to pay all, or, at least, a very large portion, of these expenses. But the good people of Northampton, filled with pride, would not let outsiders pay a cent.

A woman's clothes, on the day when her husband is paid the greatest honor of his life, are matters of grave import. But here the simplicity of the Americanism of the Governor and his wife was shown. For Mrs. Calvin Coolidge wore the same simple dark blue taffeta dress that she wore the night before the notification, out automobiling; the same dress that she wore in Vermont, when she went to "meeting" every Sunday.

The notification of the candidate for the second highest office within the power of the people to bestow, was carried out with the informality of an old home week entertainment, or a camp meeting session of devotion. The morning everybody in Northampton walked about the flag-decked streets, and shook hands with everybody else. In the morning the Coolidge family, after breakfast at the White House Inn, played about the front lawn till the time came to go to the luncheon. Then Mrs. Coolidge went for her hat, and the Governor for his.

Downstairs they called John, and Calvin, who was curled up in the sitting room over a book. They rode over to Massasoit street, their home. And, before the guests arrived, the Governor brought out an "automobile truck," at least that was the name he gave it, and helped the boys finish this work of their joint production.

This "truck" is a creation of four wheels, a body, and an automobile "hood," out in front, made of barrel staves. "Don't judge half finished work," begged the Governor, while the boys gravely inspected the "truck." "We haven't put the polish on it yet."

Well, it was after such simple doings as these, that the Governor's lady and the Governor went into the house to receive their guests.

And humble little Northamptonite was shaken hands with as cordially as great politician of the National Committee. And, after the luncheon, just as informally, the Governor and his wife, and their guests, put on their hats, and walked or rode across the way to Allen Field, Smith College athletic grounds, where they heard speeches of old New England.

The end of this week Mrs. Coolidge is to be the guests of friends, at Little's Point, Swampscott. A gracious lady needs a rest. For, between company, and guests, and travels, and speeches, and interviews, she is busy from morning to night. Though she denies that she is tired. The reason is not hard to find. The Governor's wife is bound up, heart and soul, in the Governor's career.

Life is very interesting to her, just now. And that is why the work of two women does not weary her, nor all the people make her tired. In the meantime the Governor was notified of his candidacy. And the Governor, even as he said, "formally accepted."

8-FOOT BLACKSNAKE KILLED IN MIDDLETON

Winchendon, July 28. — James Campbell and Charles Derby while spraying potatoes on the farm of Frank Johnson at Middleton encountered a black snake which measured eight feet, one inch in length. They killed the snake after a battle in which pitchforks played an important part.

COOLIDGE TOURS INSTITUTIONS

Quickly Resumes Affairs of State After Notification Ceremonies

Northampton, July 28.—Governor Coolidge devoted himself exclusively today to affairs of the Commonwealth. With the ceremony of formally notifying him of his nomination as the Republican candidate for vice president behind him, he at once turned to the State's business which accumulated during his vacation in Vermont and the exercises here.

The members of his executive council, who were here for the notification, held a conference with the governor early today. The entire party then went for an inspection of State institutions in this vicinity and planned to motor to Boston later in the day.

COOLIDGE MAY GO ON STUMP.

Meanwhile the Coolidge campaign program rests with the Republican National Committee, who will hold a meeting in New York soon to put their plans in definite shape. H. M. Daugherty of Columbus, Ohio, Senator Harding's campaign manager and his personal representative at the Coolidge exercises, said while here that he favored speaking tours for both the presidential and vice-presidential nominees.

The Coolidge family returned to their simple residence on Massasoit street today, from which they were displaced by caterers in charge of the Governor's luncheon to the notification committee. John, the Governor's older son, will accompany his grandfather, John C. Coolidge, back to the farm at Plymouth, Vt., today to spend the remainder of the Summer vacation. Calvin, Jr., will remain with his mother until they go in a few days to the Summer residence of Frank W. Stearns at Swampscott for a visit.

CITY STRIPPED OF BUNTING.

Northampton was being stripped of the bunting and flags with which she was so profusely decorated for the holiday. Few of the visitors were left, most of them having departed within a few hours after Governor Coolidge concluded his speech of acceptance.

Only one incident arose during the speech that gave special concern to the State police who were scattered throughout the crowd. Even that was so well concealed by the guards that few persons besides themselves were aware what was taking place.

WOMAN HECKLES GOVERNOR.

A Boston woman, said to have been active twenty years ago in anti-lynching crusades, had secured a position at the rope that separated the audience from the speakers' stand and in front of the Governor while he was reading his speech.

In her hand she held a slip of paper which she attempted to pass to the Governor. She became more insistent when the police ordered her to stop, but made no outcry.

Later she told the officers that the paper was a petition urging the nominee to promote laws for the curbing of profiteers. She was followed to the street where she protested to the guards over their interference and insisted that she had an appointment to meet Governor Coolidge and only wanted to keep it.

LODGE REFUSES SPEECH.

Senator Lodge was the first of the seven persons seated on the platform to leave after his departure was amidst clamors from the audience for a speech. To cries of "Lodge, we want Lodge," the Senator's only response was a wave of the hand and negatively shaking head.

The intense heat of the sun which beat into the natural amphitheatre of Allen Field caused many of the visitors to leave before the exercises were concluded. Twelve prostrations occurred during the speaking, the victims being treated at nearby relief stations.

BROKERS OBJECT TO EJECTION FROM OFFICE

William R. Fitzgerald & Co. and Edward M. Fuller & Co., brokers at No. 15 Kilby street, have brought a bill in equity in the Superior Court seeking to restrain George W. Wilson from prosecuting two writs of ejectment now pending in the Municipal Court. On April 30, 1919, Fitzgerald took a lease for three years from June 1, 1919, of a suite of rooms at No. 14 Kilby street, and the plaintiffs claim that there was no reasonable ground for Wilson's causing the writs of ejectment to be entered.

METHUEN MAKES PROTEST AGAINST ONE-MAN CARS

Methuen, July 28.—The Methuen City Council passed a unanimous vote of opposition to the one man cars operating in that city on the line of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. One man cars made their appearance in Methuen last week. A copy of the protest was sent to the trustees of the railway. Councillor Richard Nicholson declared that the one man car was an imposition on the public, declaring that they cannot make the time.

One of the Greatest Waist Sales of the Season

2500 Georgette Waists

Early in the season we sold waists of like character at 7.50 up to 10.00

Twenty-Five Hundred Waists

To make fine Georgette waists, especially those with frills and jabots—in fact, to make any waists of the most fashionable type takes time. As one maker stated, "One cannot produce good merchandise in a hurry," and this is the case with these waists. We would have liked to have them three weeks ago when they were ordered, as we could have sold them in a day; but the maker who produced them will not work in a hurry whatever the demand—his workers are accustomed to doing things in one way and that the best.

We now make the IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT that we have just received twenty-five hundred waists, which completes the first order, and as the manufacturer said, he has not turned out such fine waists at any where near this price in years. Besides the many beautiful styles first offered, there are in this lot three additional stunning models. Little wonder that the customers were instantly impressed by these waists, as they are indeed beautiful. Made of fine quality georgette in all the most fashionable styles, in white and the wanted shade of flesh. There are short sleeves and long sleeves and about all have set-in sleeves. Fully one thousand have jabot and coat frills. NEXT CUP RACE MAY BE TO BERMUDA OR ROUND LONG ISLAND

WILL NEED HEAVIER CRAFTS

Longer Event Would Create Interest—Lipton to Challenge in 1922

New York, July 28.—The next race for America's cup will be to Bermuda or around Long Island if the red-blooded followers of yachting have their way. Although the Resolute successfully defended the cup against the Shamrock IV., there was little real enthusiasm over the victory.

The series of races has not proved which is the better boat. In a light wind, the Resolute was superior, but light winds are held in righteous contempt by sportsmen, who love "a wet sheet and flowing sail."

The winds in which the yachts sailed in every race did not call for anything like that for which cups could have been participated in by elderly ladies.

Racing Yachts Too Frail for Long Race

A race to Bermuda or round Long Island, of course, would require heavier crafts. The Resolute and Shamrock IV. are frail racing machines and would be unable to weather heavy seas.

It is believed, however, that the general public would be more interested in a longer race through heavier seas than a pink tea party off Sandy Hook, where a race is postponed if the sea is at all rough.

The series between the Resolute and Shamrock was a pitiful one. It was usually a question whether the rivals would finish within the time allowance. Those who followed the two yachts displayed little real interest in the events. Consequently the general public could not be blamed for not getting excited over the outcome of the contests.

The most pleasing thing about the entire affair was the splendid sportsmanship of Sir Thomas Lipton. Following the defeat of the Shamrock, he declared the best boat had won. He then accepted the cup challenge again in 1922 as he wanted to give somebody else an opportunity to try to lift the cup next year.

Captain Burton Shows Poorly as Skipper

The work of Captain William Burton was a disappointment to the backers of the Shamrock. Burton's slowness in action and lack of judgment generally was appalling.

With Captain Charles Francis Adams, the Boston sailing master of the Resolute, it was different. He was complete master of his yacht at all times and usually did the right thing at the right time.

"I am very sorry but the best boat won," was Sir Thomas Lipton's remark as Resolute crossed the line.

"We all did our best—skipper, designer and crew—and we have been beaten fair and square.

"I have been treated throughout with greatest fairness and sportsmanship by Americans and I am taking home the very best memories of this contest. I shall watch with keen zest to give someone else a chance to challenge and then I shall rechallenge myself.

"I have no excuses to offer. Resolute is the better boat."

After two hours of dalliance at the tape the postponement signal dropped and the two craft began to head for the line and then out again. Shamrock for the first time in the series had outpicketsexed the defender and won the windward.

Shamrock skl-booted ahead, stretching wide the distance between her and the steaming defender. She bore toward the Highlands. Resolute gained on her after a while, but when she tried to cross the bows of the opposing yacht, Burton thwarted the move.

Resolute Passes Ahead of the Challenger

Not many miles from the turn, however, Resolute managed to cut across the bow of the Shamrock. She passed her on the luff and rolling on to windward caught the breeze there and left the Shamrock four minutes behind.

The Lipton sloop sailed in toward shore, counting perhaps on a wind. The calculation was wrong. She never found the wind.

Resolute drifted out to sea somewhat and the two yachts rode on widely removed from one another. At 5:56 the racers were doldrummed by the sudden decrease of the wind.

Someone must have thrown 1000 dollars into the sea at that moment for a breeze was a flukey article and was unexpected. Notwithstanding, it was this wind which whirled her home the winner.

Fourth Start—Both yachts disabled in the same elapsed time, Resolute winning on time allowance.

INDIANS-SOX SERIES OPENS

Boston Team on Second Swing Around the Western Circuit

Cleveland, July 28.—Hopeful, but with a somewhat weaker lineup than was presented on their former visit to Cleveland this year, the Red Sox began their second swing around the Western circuit in a game with the Indians today.

During their brief recess from big league baseball Manager Ed Barrow sought to impress upon his hopefuls the necessity of more consistent batting if they expected to climb back into the first division, where the Red Sox believe decently that they belong.

Against the Yankees Monday the clan of Barrow batted well enough while Sam Jones was holding the league runners-up to three scattered singles, but generally in recent contests this Severan has been true.

The pitching of the Boston staff may not have been all that could be desired during the past four weeks or more, but it is hardly fair to put it all up to the moundsmen.

A few hits are necessary at times to make runs and lack of the latter spells only defeat.

Manager Speaker, figuring every game just now that the Yankees are treading so closely upon the heels of the Indians to be of the utmost importance, decided to inject Sergeant Jim Bagby, the reliable, into today's fray, while Barrow, still admonishing his men to make more and then still more base hits, resolved to depend on the southpaw slants of Harry Harper to turn back the league leaders.

CARPENTIER COMING TO FIGHT LEVINSKY

New York, July 28.—All doubt was dispelled as to whether or not Georges Carpentier, the French war hero and heavyweight champion of Europe, intended to return to this country to keep his date with Battling Levinsky, when the announcement was made by the motion picture concern that starred Carpentier that Carpentier is to sail from France in two weeks and is due to arrive here the following week. The Levinsky-Carpentier go is scheduled to take place October 16.

CONCORD JUNCTION NINE WINS TWILIGHT GAME

BRAVES-CUBS IN TWIN BILL

Return of Rudolph Gives Locals New Hope for Better Luck

By NICK FLATLEY.

The rest of the season for the Braves should be much better than the past, in the opinion of Manager Stallings, who isn't overly discouraged despite a rather sour showing on the recent Western swing and a dismal home opening yesterday.

The harried manager of baseball's greatest in-and-outers had a little sunshine cast into his life when small Richard Rudolph announced this a. m. that his arm was back in trim, and that he would be in line for winning service any time a kid was put in.

Small Richard has been having a tough time with a lame shoulder, but the ailment has finally vanished and addition of the shrewdest hurler in the business should boom Bra-ves stock along quite a bit.

The team is still carrying a flock of cripples, two of whom, Sullivan and Cruise, represent a big fraction of the Braves punch. Both have bad ankles and will be missing except in pinch capacities for quite a few days yet.

Walter Holke of first base isn't in the best of health, merely playing on his nerve. But with Sullivan unable to appear, Walter just has to stick in there and do his best, which is a whole lot to his credit. He still retains the antics that made the team look so nifty at the beginning of the season.

Double-Header Slated for Today

There were two games on the list this afternoon, and a fine chance to get a game away from the Cubs on the home orchard. Thus far Mitchell & Co. have grabbed the four played, without a great deal of opposition.

But with Scott and Oeschger, not to mention McQuillan, prepared to do the flinging today, the chances favored at least one Boston victory.

The enemy likewise was well fortified on the hill, with Hippo James Vaughn and Claude Hendrix due to toss. James and Claude are very, very good at times, especially when the Braves appear on the slim.

Manager Mitchell doesn't concede for a moment that his team is out of the race. In fact, he feels very much in there, and doesn't hesitate to say that if none of his stars break down he will be right up at the pace when late September swings along.

Mitch at present is minus the use of his brilliant shortstop, Hollocher, who is a victim of some stomachic ailment, but expects to have him in harness again before the team leaves our village.

Hap, likely to lose Charlie Herzog shortly, too, as the former Brave may have to undergo an operation, which he has been stalling off since the season started. But even with that in sight, Mitch is optimistic. His team is only forty points or so from the ceiling and still has sixty-five games to play.

He has Alexander, Vaughn, Tyler, Hendrix and Carter pitching good baseball, and that staff in itself should mean a pennant contender in the National League scramble.

Tyler has started the team a climbing by romping off with his last four starts, and if he can continue to step in and take some of the strain off big Alex and Hippo the outfit cannot be reckoned out of the struggle.

RED SOX WINS GAME FROM IRON COMPANY

Parkersburg, Pa., July 28.—The Red Sox defeated the Parkersburg Iron Company team, 2 to 0. The victory was to the nature of a present as not only did the Iron men outhit the big leaguers, but fifteen outpitched Divinny, striking out four men and allowing but four scattered hits. Errors however, on the part of his support cost the game.

He first made his bid for fame as a cinder track performer when a member of the St. Louis A. C., but is now connected with the New York A. C.

ONE BOSTON HORSE WINS, ANOTHER IS BADLY HURT

Columbus, O., July 28.—Victory for one New England mare and a disastrous accident to another after she apparently had the race won, were the features of the racing of the $5,000 stake for 2-11 pacers, the feature event of the Grand Circuit card.

Millie Irwin, owned by G. E. Osborn of Limestone, Me., and driven by the Connecticut Spinman, Will Fleming, was the winner, while the Boston mare, Alta Dunedin, owned by Franklin Downs, after winning the second heat, cut the tendons of her right front leg completely off, and, while she may live, probably never will race again.

RECORD GALLERY TO SEE BIG FOUR OF GOLFING WORLD BATTLE

BIG MATCH CARDED AT BELMONT

Vardon and Ray to Meet Ouimet and Guilford on Friday

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Springfield, July 28.—Harry Vardon and Ted Ray played here today at the Country Club of Springfield against James A. Toole of Holyoke and Milton B. Reach of Springfield, the strongest amateur team golfers Western Massachusetts was able to muster.

While the British experts were expected to have an easy time in winning from the local amateurs in the eighteen-hole match, many bets were made here that neither Vardon nor Ray would break 70 on the 6,200-yard course. The record is 68, and is held by John Cowan, professional at the Oakley Country Club.

Vardon and Ray declared they were well satisfied not to have too difficult a golfing program for today and tomorrow, as they have heard that Ouimet and Guilford are going good and prepared to give them one of the hardest tussles they have had in America when they meet the Boston amateurs at Belmont Friday.

The Englishmen play eighteen holes in New Britain tomorrow against local players and should not have to extend themselves. They should be keen for the big match at Belmont Friday. Both players are eager to see Ouimet in action again.

Ouimet and Guilford Put on Finishing Edge

Vardon and Ray have won six and lost one match since they arrived in this country. The best ball they have been turning out on American courses indicates that it will take something very low to win at Belmont, but Boston golfers are confident that Francis and Jesse can provide the necessary figure.

Francis and Jesse had Bert Nichol and George Bowden as opponents at Belmont today and those two professionals should give the amateurs a good warming up for they are capable of hitting in something better than a 70. Bert played with Ouimet last Sunday and declared that if Francis played Friday, as he did last Sunday, no golfer in the world would be able to stand the pace Francis had a 69 that day.

Large Gallery Is Anticipated

Watch for This Story in Motion Pictures

"The World and His Wife," soon to be seen in motion pictures at the best theatres, is a Cosmopolitan production released as a Paramount-Artcraft picture from the play by Charles Frederic Nirdlinger, founded on the dramatic verse of Jose Echegaray.

Screen Version Novelized
By Jane McLean

DON JULIAN, who had purposely not looked in Alvarez's direction, now raised his eyes, and meeting the gaze of the other bowed with punctiliousness; whereupon the younger, with a show of deference, rose and walking over to the table with the greatest air of camaraderie, "I had the pleasure of seeing your charming wife and Ernesto, the young poet, out driving this morning."

"Yes." Don Julian bowed in his turn, "they went, as they frequently do, at my request. When I am too busy to go myself I delegate the son of my old friend as the guardian of my wife."

Again Don Alvarez bowed, returning to his table, where he was greeted with suppressed enthusiasm.

"You see," whispered Severo, "they are laughing at you, the whole world is laughing at you and you do not resent it."

"I say," Wickersham broke in, "if you will excuse me, there's a chap from over the Channel." His bows bowed.

"And the tamale another time?"

"Another time," said Julian, who had not yet ordered.

He sipped his wine nervously. "We'll finish our wine, Severo, and then go. I feel strangely annoyed."

When they had gone Don Alvarez shook his head as though in sadness. "He asks the poet to act as guardian of his wife. It's too bad, but really when it comes to choosing an ambassador we can't have a man whose domestic relations show even the shadow of a blight."

The two brothers went directly home. As they entered the door they saw in the patio Donna Mercedes awaiting their return.

She exchanged looks with her husband and when Julian had retired to think over the incidents of the afternoon, hastily unburdened herself of a discovery.

Another Discovery

"I have been talking with the servants," she announced, "and every one of them has been forced to confess that this young man is in love with Teodora; it doesn't matter what she feels now, if he is allowed to stay it is only a question of time when she will desert her husband for her lover."

"You are right, my wife. Why don't you warn her—tell her it's for her good as well as for the name of the family."

"I will, I wanted your approval," said Mercedes. "At the first opportunity I shall have a frank talk with her, but tell me, what happened at the cafe?"

"Nothing but a remark of Don Alvarez, but enough to show Julian he is the subject of gossip; I think it has set him to wondering."

"Everything will come out as it should," the woman assured him. "It's lucky we came right on before it was too late—it's bad enough as it is, but we may save him yet."

Of all the people in the big house Teodora and Ernesto were the only ones ignorant of what was going on behind their backs; it was inevitable that they should hear the gossip sooner or later. Donna Mercedes had appointed herself a special agent to tell the wife. She approached her task with a keen relish. It would have suited her to be able to force a confession of wrongdoing from this style of a girl who had usurped the heart of her brother-in-law.

She went about her task with a subtle reference to Ernesto's presence in the house.

"It must be very pleasant," she said, "to have such a charming young man as Ernesto in the house."

"Pleasant, why yes, he is here because Don Julian wishes it, and no one appreciates that more than Ernesto himself."

"I understand perfectly," said Mercedes.

Quite Regular

"I never met him before my husband introduced us," continued Teodora.

"Oh, that part of it is quite regular, but do you think, my dear, it's quite wise for you to be seen together so much?"

"Seen together by whom?" The girl raised her eyes in genuine astonishment.

"By the world, my dear."

Teodora shrugged her shoulders. "But my husband knows, and if he is satisfied why care what the world says?"

"Ah, that's the point," insisted Mercedes. "I am thinking of your husband, and for his interests I come to you knowing you wish to do everything possible to forward his interests."

"He knows that," interrupted Teodora.

"But he is a very busy man; he has supreme faith in you and it does not occur to him that this young man's presence in the house may be construed wrongly by the gossips."

To Be Continued Tomorrow

Not Her Hubby

A married couple were looking into a shop window. A handsome tailor-made dress took the lady's fancy, and she left her husband's side to examine it more closely. Then she went back to where he had been standing and took his arm.

"You never look at anything I want you to look at," she exclaimed. "You don't care how I dress. You don't love me now. Why, you haven't kissed me for three weeks."

"Indeed, I am sorry; it is not my fault, but my misfortune," said the man.

Turning round she looked at him and gave a shriek. She had taken the arm of the wrong man!

Miss Nilsson's Beauty Secrets

Anna Q. Nilsson, the wonderful motion picture actress, who is writing a series of articles on beauty secrets soon to appear in this paper, says that a beautiful, rosy-white skin and complexion is the best asset any girl or woman can have. She further states that the best and quickest way to obtain this is to use a simple toilet preparation, familiar to every well known actress. It is called Derwillo and can be obtained at the toilet counter of any up-to-date drug or department store. This wonderful derwillo is used by over five hundred thousand discriminating girls and women throughout the country and is rapidly becoming a regular fad. It takes the place of face powder, stays on better and its use cannot be detected. Perspiration does not affect it and it will not rub off on clothing. Derwillo is especially recommended for dark, sallow, rough skin, freckles, tan, sunburns and many other facial blemishes. Be sure to read Miss Nilsson's next article. In the meantime get derwillo and try it today, you are sure to be delighted.—Advertisement.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

"YOU dear thing!" I replied, squeezing her hand and hopping she wouldn't mind my dragging in a third without consulting her. "But we aren't going to be all by our lonesomes. Do you mind?"

"Why, no," said Carlotta politely, but with no great show of interest. "Any one you want is sure to be welcome."

"I knew I could count on you to be polite and a good sport, too," I replied. "But here comes that third man, and he's sure of a welcome of his own wherever he goes—it's dear old Tony."

In the moment before Tony had finished greeting me and had turned to Carlotta I got a queer impression that she started and paled under her crimsoned cheeks. But by the time I turned to address her Carlotta was quite herself again—a little flamboyant, a trifle overhearty, but warmly sincere for all that.

A Vague Intimation

"Have you time to let me whisk you up the road for a cool hour or two at the inn out on the river bank?" asked Tony.

"Please—please don't let me keep you, but I don't think I'll be able to go. I've just remembered an appointment," cried Carlotta, with more uneasiness than I'd ever seen her show.

"Oh, but that's a great disappointment!" protested Tony heartily, and his words fairly overlapped my protestations.

"I'll eat at a hot-dog wagon, Carlotta, before I'll permit myself to be separated from you!"

"Do you really want me?" she asked, turning from one to the other of us like a pleased child.

Of course we insisted, touched by the simple, unassuming way in which Carlotta would have endured a broken engagement rather than be in the way. But as we drove out toward the river I wondered a little.

Carlotta isn't the self-effacing sort nor yet the over-sensitive type who always fancy themselves de trop. Was there something on her mind today which she'd been particularly anxious to discuss with me? It might even concern Pat. I grew a little uneasy as I conjectured and conjured up situations. And in the midst of my silence I noticed how fluently Tony was talking. Carlotta seemed to bring him out the way his very best friends did. And she was fairly hanging on his words with the most flattering attention.

It wasn't till lunch was almost over that understanding came to me—that all the little things that had puzzled me for the last hour became suddenly clear.

Pat Almost a Stranger

"No, I don't see much of Pat Dalton any more," she was saying. "He's on his feet now—doesn't need my friendship as he did. And the business is right in his hands—that doesn't need my supervision at it did."

"You sound wistful," Tony replied. "Surely you don't think you could ever be useless or forgotten. There would always be a place for any one of your deep sympathies anywhere.

"One can so easily intrude," replied Carlotta, and her voice was wistful indeed. "But I'm grateful for what you've been saying. Coming from so loyal a friend of Anne's it means more than I can tell you."

And then, like a flash, some words of Carlotta's came back to me. Grim little, sad little words confessing that there was a man—a man she could love and idolize, but that she had no right to try to win him and that he didn't know she was on earth, because there was another woman claiming his attention. Something in her intent eyes made me feel that Anthony Norreys was the man—HER MAN to Carlotta.

But who was the other woman, the woman who needed Tony?

"Have some more cider cup."

Romantic Serial by a Noted Author

urged Carl, juggling a big, fruit-laden pitcher over our glasses as he got up and strolled about the festive board. Jim, Daisy and I were keeping our postponed dinner engagement in Carl's attractive bachelor apartment. He and I had prepared the meal in the kitchenette, while Jim and Daisy took charge of the department of the dining room. The luscious beefsteak he had grilled had now vanished to give place to the peach shortcake, whose satisfying crusty and flaky biscuit dough was of my proud manufacture.

"At our next party," went on Carl in great satisfaction, "we will give you folks a chance to prove you can bake and broil as well as we did tonight, but I doubt if Barbara Anne and I can ever equal this cup you and Daisy invented. The division of labor seems to have been inspired."

"Do you think it was?" asked Daisy, suddenly leaning across the table and fairly pleading with Jim for a word of flattery.

But Jim was so intent on Carlfrom whom he hadn't seemed able to divert his attention for the greater part of the evening, that he didn't respond to Daisy's cue. She wanted a sop to her vanity and wanted it badly, that I knew.

From the moment Carl apprehended the labor so that Jim and Daisy were occupied with the lighter tasks that kept them in the dining room and sent us to the kitchen, Daisy acted strangely. She jerked between desires and her inability to hide them from my eyes.

The Right Way to Reduce

By Brice Belden, M. D.

WHAT we aim to do in the treatment of obesity is to burn up the surplus fat in the body and prevent its reaccumulation.

Regulation of the diet constitutes the essential part of this treatment.

The burning up of our tissues is not always regular and uniform, and our attempts to increase the oxidation of fats do not always bring a prompt and full response.

It is the variation in the rate of oxidation which accounts for the small eaters who remain persistently stout, while large eaters as persistently remain thin. The demands made by partial starvation, therefore do not always reduce the obese as one might expect.

When imperfect oxidation interferes with our attempts to reduce people who weigh too much, the ductless glands are generally at fault. Anything which injures those glands or disturbs their functions is likely to affect oxidation undesirably, since they have much to do in the way of regulating that burning-up process. One of the commonest causes of ductless gland disturbances is autointoxication from the eating of too much animal food (milk and its products excepted).

It is therefore well in dealing with obesity to exclude from the dietary meat and eggs. Practically, this will be found to work well. Some milk may be allowed, as these patients need a little protein of unobjectionable character.

Water should be drunk in ordinary quantities.

Fresh fruit and vegetables should be eaten, as they supply needed body salts and vitamines.

Do not reduce faster than two pounds a week, as otherwise unpleasant consequences may ensue.

Allow occasional periods of rest from the rigid diet.

Be cautious if there is any disease. Elderly people who have been obese for a long time should not try to reduce.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Ladies! Try this! Darkens beautifully and nobody can tell—Brings back its gloss and youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a mussy mix.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

HE found an annoying monotony in the trees of the Hola, a tiresome sameness in square and circle and park and boulevard. He found the languages difficult to understand, more difficult to speak. Food, accommodations, the domestic regime, wire not to his liking. French economics bored him.

At lectures his comrades seemed merely superficially polite and not very desirable as acquaintances. He felt himself out of place, astray from familiar things, out of touch with this civilization, out of sympathy with place and people. He was intensely lonely.

In the beginning he wrote to Stephanie every other day. That burst of activity lasted about two months.

Also, in his rather dingy and cheerless suite of rooms, he began a tragedy in five acts and a pessimistic novel called "Out of the Depths." Alas, he was guilty of a book of poems called "Day Dreams."

He missed his father terribly; he missed his home; he missed the noisy, grotesque, half-civilized and monstrous city of his nativity. And he missed Stephanie violently.

He told her so in every letter. The more letters he wrote the warmer grew this abrupt affection for her. And, his being a creative talent, with all its temperamental impulses, exaggerations and drawbacks, he began to evolve unconsciously out of Stephanie Quest a girl based on the real girl he knew, only transcendentally endowed with every desirable and ornamental quality abstractly favored by himself.

He began to create an ideal Stephanie to comfort him in his loneliness; he created, too, a mutual attraction and a sentimental atmosphere for them both, neither of which had existed when he left America.

But now, in his letters, more and more this romantic and airy fabric took shape. Being young, and for the first time in his life thrown entirely on his resources—and, moreover, feeling for the first time the pleasures of wielding an eloquent, delicate and capricious pen to voice indefinable aspirations, he began to lose himself in romantic exhibitions, making dreams out of nothing, developing it by implication and constructing it with passive and captious humor hinting of dreamy melancholy.

Until the Stephanie Quest of his imagination had become to him the fair and completely idealized little renaissance figure of his fancy, and he, somehow or other, her victim. And the more exquisite and indifferent he created her the more she fascinated him, until he completely hypnotized himself with his own divinely finished product.

A letter from her woke him up more or less, jolting him in his trance so that the jingle and dissonance of the real world filled, for a moment, his enchanted ears.

Dear Jim:

Your letters perplex me more and more and I don't know at all how to take your moods. Do you mean you are in love with me? I can't believe it. I read and re-read your last three letters—such dear, odd, whimsical letters!—so wonderfully written, so full of beauty and of poetry.

They do almost sound like love-letters—or at least as I imagine love letters are written. But they can't be. And how can they be? And first of all, even if you meant them that way, I don't know what to think. I've never been in love. I know how I feel about you—have always felt. You know, too.

Cisland read on: Jim, you never gave me any reason to think—and I never dreamed of thinking—anything like that when you were here. It never occurred to me. It would not occur to me now except for your very beautiful letters so unlike you—so strangely sad, so whimsical, so skilful in wonderful phrases that they're like those vague prose poems you sent me, which hint enough to awaken, you, imagination and set you aflame with curiosity.

But you can't mean that you're in love with me. I should be too astonished, and besides, I should know what to do about it. It wouldn't seem real. I never have thought of you in such a way.

What makes a girl fall in love? Do you know? Could she fall in love with a man through his letters because they were beautiful and sad and pensive, so full of charm and mystery? I'm in love with them. But, Jim, I don't know what to think about you. I'd have to see you again, first, anyway. You are such a dear boy!

An Unexpected Catch

A certain young Eskimo fell deeply in love with the daughter of a mortal enemy of his, whose hut was near to his own, and as there was no other way of winning her he determined to steal her in the approved manner of savage tribes. Shortly after he had come to this decision a terrible storm arose and ripped up a crevasse in the ice, leaving only a tiny strip of ice as a bridge between the two huts. The lover made up his mind to take advantage of this, and in the dead of night he silently crossed it to the hut of his enemy to steal the girl he loved. Now Eskimos sleep in huge mounds of bedclothes, and very carefully lifting one, and hoisting it on to his back, he recrossed the bridge of ice. When safely arrived on the other side he broke down the ice bridge so that pursuit would be impossible. Entering his own hut, he carefully opened the bag to embrace his adored, but staggered back in horror. He had bagged her father!

MOVE TO CANCEL DEBT TO U. S.

Suggests Calling Off Inter-Allied Obligations and Let America 'Stand the Racket'

Paris, July 28.—America's participation in the Russo-allied peace conference in London is imperative, according to the consensus of opinion in the highest quarters in France.

Experts on international affairs, who are regarded as the highest in Europe, forecast that the financial status of the world affairs is fated to fall upon the United States, owing to the inability of any other nation meeting the liabilities.

Events have moved with such lighting speed that it was not until today that the foreign office in Paris realized that the allies, forced against the wall by the Soviets, have lost their supremacy, both from a diplomatic and military standpoint. It is the Moscow government's turn to make the conditions of their "entry into the world powers' concert."

It follows that France is extremely apprehensive regarding the hoped for reinstatement of loans long ago made the Russian Czar.

RUSSIA HAS BILL.

Well informed quarters believe that Lenine, if pressed to recognize the debts, will easily agree, on condition that the Allies consent to settle Russia's reparations bill, due to the long Allied blockade, their financial and military help extended freely to Denikine, Kolchak, Wrangel and Poland, and all the rebel factions which have been fighting the Soviets.

It is expected that such an arrangement would be the best which could be obtained to wipe out France's claim, necessitating, in order to save France's financial position, a division of the burden among all the Allies associated with her.

In other words, the only solution suggested so far would amount to the calling off of all inter-Allied indebtedness, with the final result that America, who is the sole creditor of Europe, would be the only one to stand the racket.

DEMANDS CZAR'S DEBT.

It was with this in view that the midnight cabinet meeting, the most important since the one held August 1, 1914, assembled last night in the Paris foreign office, at which time it was decided that France will reiterate her old claim for repayment of the Czar's debt to the French government.

Millerand, therefore, was asked to hasten a meeting with Lloyd George in Boulogne, which course was decided upon after practically uninterrupted long-distance telephone communication with London all day Monday.

French diplomats believe that the European nations who so far have held aloof from the Soviets must hasten to regain lost ground in order to offset the tremendous advantage Great Britain already holds.

JAPAN ACCUSED OF BACKING CHINESE REBELS

Tokio, July 28.—The charge that Japan is pursuing a policy of perpetuating China's weakness and disorder is made by Dr. Sun-Yat-Sen, the leader of the revolution which created a Chinese republic, to the Japanese Minister of War.

Dr. Sun-Yat-Sen accuses Japan of secretly backing General Chang-Tao-lin, who is plotting for the restoration of the monarchy. He declares Japan has alternately supported and dropped every leader who has arisen in China, in pursuance of her policy of provoking chaos.

CARMEN MAKE PLEA FOR TOM MOONEY

Washington, July 28.—Further effort by President Wilson to obtain new trials for Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings, convicted of complicity in the San Francisco preparedness day bomb outrage, July 22, 1916, was urged at the White House by a committee representing the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employes of America.

CREATORE'S ART WINS FAVOR

Famous Band Reaches New Heights of Musical Perfection Minus Gymnastics

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Creatore and his band are at Symphony Hall for a couple of days more. It's considered a bit ordinary by the upper classes of music lovers to like a brass band, and there are few brass bands which sound very good except on parade, and they usually sound better marching away than approaching.

This Italian, however, has grown into a great artist from a mountebank. When I first saw him he used to stand on his head and perform other acrobatic tricks in the way of conducting. These were his methods of advertising himself, I suppose.

Now he conducts sanely and effectively, even if he does stray among his men instead of sticking to the conductor's stand. But it is not by baton wielding that you judge a conductor, it's by the results he gets.

Creatore has a band of brilliant musicians, as rare and mellow a brass choir and as graceful a lot of woodwinds as I have ever heard. He hasn't the slightest hesitation in making extraordinary demands upon his instruments and not once did any of them fail him last evening.

He closed his program with a fantasy of his own based upon half a dozen Irish melodies. He contrived to get some wonderful climaxes and there is one superb moment in "The Harp of Tara" transcription which would entitle Creatore to an honorary membership in the Friends of Irish Freedom if De Valera should happen to hear it.

OFFER $50 REWARD FOR NORTH ANDOVER THIEVES

Lawrence, July 28.—A standing reward of $50 was posted for information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of future violators of the law at Lake Cochichewick, North Andover. The offer was posted by a protective association recently organized by campers at the lake, who are incensed at numerous breaks into camps and various depredations on property. As a result of the association's activity, several offenders already have been apprehended and considerable stolen property recovered.

NEW STEEL STRIKE NEAR, CHURCHMEN TELL WILSON

Washington, July 28.—Conditions in the steel industry in the United States are "drifting toward unrestricted warfare," President Wilson was told in a letter accompanying the report of the commission of inquiry of the interchurch world movement, which investigated the recent steel strike. A renewal of the strike seems inevitable, unless vital changes are brought to pass, the commission's letter to the President declares.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

O'Leary

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

O'LEARY
VARIATION—Leary.
RACIAL ORIGIN—Irish.
SOURCE—A given name.

O'LEARY is a good old royal name. Even Shakespeare recognized it as such when he wrote his "King Lear."

But the ancient Irish kings who bore this name, and from one of whom the modern family name is derived, did not spell it that way. The nearest we can come to the old spelling in using the English alphabet is "Laeghaire." The Irish pronunciation varies, of course, in the different sections of Ireland, and there have also been changes in pronunciation due to the lapse of time, but you can make a pretty good attempt if you say it "lay-airy," without emphasizing the "airy," too sharply; and if you can inject a faint "h" or guttural sound between the two sections, so much the better.

The most famous Laeghaire of Irish history was the Ard-Righ, or High-King, who held his court at Tara, in Meath (which was a sort of "federal" province, bearing the same relation to all Ireland that the District of Columbia does to the United States), and there received St. Patrick, about 432 A. D. At that first meeting the saint converted Laeghaire's daughters and half his court from paganism in open debate, and also won the king's friendship and help in the campaign which spread Christianity over the land like wildfire. But though he aided Christianity, Laeghaire himself never professed faith, and died a pagan.

Of course, the orthodox form of the family name is O'Leary, or Hui Laeghaire, the "O'" being a contraction of "Hy" or "Hui," meaning "descendant of." But many families have in modern times dropped this prefix.

Tomorrow—Ballou.

Nature as a Painter

Investigations recently made have brought to light the fact that for all fruits and flowers only three coloring substances are furnished by Nature. One of these is the familiar "chlorophyll," which paints the beans and peas, the watermelon and the leaves of the trees so vivid a green. Another is "xanthophyll," which exhibits its lutenus yellow in the carrot, for example. The third os "erythrophyll," which shows its rich red in the beet. The last two are only modified "chlorophyll, however. But it is marvelous to realize that all the varied hues of flowers and fruits are due to these three substances, mixed in different proportions.

STOCKS RALLY IN CLOSING HOUR

Steel and General Motors Worst Performers on List During Day's Session

By BROADAN WALL

New York, July 28.—In the last hour yesterday stocks had a sharp rally following another period of extreme weakness in which leading issues sold at the lowest prices in a couple of years. U. S. Steel and General Motors were the worst performers of the day, both breaking to new low records for this year, the former to the lowest price in two years.

This break in steel was in spite of the fact that the quarterly earnings for the period ending June 30 showed an improvement. The fact that these two stocks, which represent the best in American industry, were so weak, proved that the market is under no influence of money altogether, intrinsic value having no weight just now.

The close of the market was in the midst of this rally with advances of from one to six points above the low of the day and in some few cases with net gains. Money renewed at 8 per cent. but closed at 8.

U. S. Steel was weak from the start for the street had a report that the quarterly report would be bad. This conception was arrived at because of the freight congestion. Official figures published after the close showed that the company earned $1,946,656 more in the second quarter than in the first and that it earned $8,824,404 more in the second quarter of this year than in the same quarter last year.

The earnings were $2.96 a share on the common compared with $3.58 to previous quarter and $2.29 in the second quarter last year.

DIVIDEND NOTICE

A semi-annual dividend at the rate of 8% per annum has been declared by the General Mortgage & Loan Corporation, payable July 31, 1920.

SUGAR ISSUES ARE HIGHER

Rails Also Make Forenoon Gains in New York, While Steels and Motors Rally

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular at noon in New York, with the list about evenly balanced as to gains and losses. Sugars were strong and rails had advanced, while steels, motors and coppers were above their recent low levels. Among issues to show gains were American Sugar, Cuban American, Cuba Cane, Punta Alegre, Reading, Delaware and Hudson, Pacific, Union Pacific, Baldwin, Studebaker, Hupp Motor, Maxwell, Willys-Overland, Texas and Pacific, Mexican Petroleum and Pan-American. They were up from fractions to three points.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent. Foreign exchange rates ruled a shade lower, demand sterling opening at $3.78. The stock market was less active than yesterday, first hour transactions totaling about 190,000 shares.

IRREGULAR AT OPENING.

Prices had an irregular movement at the opening, with most stocks declined a little and the trend was indefinite for awhile. But motors became stronger and steels, which were inclined the other way, with Bethlehem B the weakest. Its second quarter report did not increase the demand for U. S. Steel. Central Leather and Marine common both sold at new lows for the year, the latter at the start and former within a few minutes. There were signs of a rally at the end of a half hour, but the improvement was brief. Among strongest issues during the first hour were Barrett, Houston Oil, Canadian Pacific, General Motors, Mexican Petroleum and Pressed Steel Car. All were up two points or more before mid-morning. General Motors was the strongest in its class. Rails as a group were a little lower as the start, but they rallied. Baldwin was one of the most active stocks and moved up and down within a fractional range. Most Liberty Bonds were up a little.

LIQUIDATION OF INDUSTRIALS.

U. S. was established by certain interests that the selling on Tuesday was by a bear clique and was not liquidation. But the financial world contradicted this. As yacht racing is over and a full complement of bankers and brokers were in the district today, there was more disposition this morning to cover short sales than to sell for short account. Strong interests are said to have resumed buying on yesterday's weakness. This short covering was probably a more potent influence than any buying, and is causing more concern than anything else. There is no sign of relaxation, and crop reports will from week to week add to the strain. Cash is more desired now than other securities or commodity holdings. This creates expectation of lower prices for both.

Treasury Buys More Silver

The United States Treasury Department has just bought 269,000 ounces of silver, paying 99½ cents an ounce as the Pittman act provides. The metal just purchased is destined for the Philadelphia mint.

PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON

Movement Is Indefinite All the Morning on Local Exchange; Curb Is Listless

The Boston market was dull again today, having a very quiet start. As a rule opening prices were lower and at its best during the morning the list was irregular. Trading had no feature and excited very little interest in any quarter and none from the public. Most price changes were small.

Among stocks to advance a point during the forenoon were Copper Range and Quincy, while smaller gains were made by American Woolen preferred, New Haven, United Shoe, Utah Day, Walworth and Gray & Davis.

Paint issues were sustained by United Fruit common, International Products common and Eastern Steamship common. Fractional losses were imposed upon Boston & Maine, United Fruit, National Leather, Carson Hill, Libby, Nat'l International and Mayflower-Old Colony.

NO LIFE TO CURB.

There was no life to the Curb market at the start and it was listless all the morning. While gains predominated at the opening there was a downward tendency later. Among strong issues were Albany Divide, Eureka, Jerome Verde and Rex Divide, while weak ones included Mohawk, Bagdad and Sly Consolidated. Most active issues were Butte and Montana, Madonna and Eureka.

At the end of an hour Boston and Montana was off 1 cent at 65 cents, Mayflower sent at 28 cents and Madonna % at 2.

More Coal Needed

Take country's fuel needs will exceed production, according to mining experts, unless the output is greater than that of last year. It is figured that 545,000,000 tons must be mined to meet requirements and this is 85,000,000 tons more than was produced in 1918. During the first 169 working days of this year bituminous production aggregated 282,945,000 tons as compared with 283,212,000 for the corresponding period of last year. The anthracite output since Jan. 1 totals 48,881,000 tons, an increase of 3,338,000 tons over what was mined in a like period of 1919.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Congratulations to Secretary Houston

It Is a Pleasure, for a Change, to Learn That the Country's Debt Is Going DOWN

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

In financial matters, big and little, national and individual, just one thing counts, CUTTING DOWN WHAT YOU OWE.

Every man, woman and child in the United States owes today twenty-five dollars less than last year.

In other words, Secretary Houston announces that the management of the National Treasury has reduced the amount of the national debt by two thousand five hundred millions of dollars. The country owes two and a half billions less than it did a little while ago. And as each of the hundred millions of people in the United States is responsible for the debt of the nation, it means a saving of twenty-five dollars for every one of us.

More important than cutting down the debt two and a half billions is the fact announced by Secretary Houston that the country is now living INSIDE OF ITS INCOME, a thing that every wise man does, in times such as these, and about which not even the richest nation in the world can afford to be indifferent.

The country is indebted to Mr. Houston for his financial management, and for the fact, well known in Washington, that he does everything that his office gives him power to do in fighting against further debt and in paying off debts now owing.

Unfortunately, when it comes to extravagance suggested by any source and approved by Congress, the Secretary of the Treasury is helpless. He must pay, whether it be millions or billions, and he must borrow as best he can if he hasn't the money to pay.

WOULD IT NOT BE A GOOD IDEA TO GIVE THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY SOME KIND OF VETO POWER IN REGARD TO NATIONAL EXPENDITURES?

This need not mean taking from the President the power to veto acts of Congress and it need not mean setting the Secretary of the Treasury above Congress in power.

In every well managed business there is a treasurer, a "financial man," always consulted as to what the firm can AFFORD.

Others, perhaps, own and control the business and have the power to do as they please. But they would consider themselves foolish business men if they acted without consulting the man in charge of the money and disregarded his advice.

Mr. Cox has announced that if he is elected he will call the Vice-President into the Cabinet and let him "listen in," although he won't have any regular job.

It might be a better idea to increase the power and importance of the Secretary of the Treasury, giving to a man who shows Mr. Houston's interest and efficiency in the public finances the influence that should be possessed by the man that must PAY THE BILLS, after others have incurred the indebtedness.

This Government is spending now in a year about seven billions of dollars and getting very little in return for it.

So-called bankrupt nations in Europe are building railroads and canals owned by the people TODAY, while this country is content to provide money to be spent, inefficiently, by private owners of railroads that cannot supply transportation even for coal and other absolute necessities.

The United States ought to be engaged in really important public work, spending its millions to increase the wealth and resources of the nation, to cut down deserts with irrigation, dry up swamps with ditching, and otherwise making a better farm of the United States.

Wouldn't it be a good idea to give the Secretary of the Treasury utmost power in regard to financial matters and create a Secretary of Engineering and National Construction, with power to spend for the public good such sums as the Treasury might afford?

Nothing could be more pitiful and pathetic than this nation running along without a budget, more careless in its financial planning than the owner of a bootblack stand, one branch of government appropriating money, another official of government in the Treasury told simply to "Go out and get it," with no power to limit extravagance.

Such a man as Secretary Houston, anxious and apparently able to manage finances on a big scale, should have at least the authority that usually goes with a position of that kind. He should have some kind of a financial veto that would require at least a few weeks of reconsideration and planning before it could be overridden. All of which is humbly submitted to the wisdom of those that make the laws.

THE SCRAP BEFORE THE SHOW

You talk economy and figure to spend your money judiciously, but how about the squabble you have with your wife some fine evening when you are both getting ready to go to the theatre?

Suppose you spend from two dollars to ten dollars on tickets and incidentals and then instead of being able to enjoy the play or the concert you are so wrought up and nervous that you cannot get any pleasure from it.

It would be just so much money thrown away, would it not?

Perhaps it starts because your wife is so long getting dressed.

You have been a business man long enough to know the value of time, and so you attempt to read her a lecture and she won't listen to you.

It makes you grouchy because she resents your criticism, and she feels that the least you can do is to keep your mouth shut and wait patiently, for you know that fussing when she is hurrying confuses her.

And then you two foolish ones meander forth with such dark thoughts for each other that your money is as good as thrown away for all the good you get from the pretty lights, the clever acting and the music.

Isn't it too bad?

Don't waste your opportunities to enjoy life together.

More Truth Than Poetry

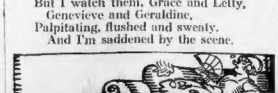
Perspiring Beauty

By S. E. KISER

WEARY business men require
Entertainment that is light,
And the dancing girls perspire
To relieve their minds, at night.
When the weather's hot and sticky
And I watch them twist and whirl,
Through the dances that are kicky
Much I pity every girl.
Though they smile, pretending sweetly
That it's all the greatest fun,
Sweat must cover them completely
When their evening's work is done.

NEVER resting, seldom stopping,
They must gambol to and fro,
With the perspiration dropping
From them as they come and go.
Fat men who are also hairless
Order cooling drinks and smile,
Seeming to be blithe and careless
For a lively little while.
Bessie's ankles stick together,
Frankie frisks in soggy shoes,
But no matter what the weather,
Make them dance and let them ooze.

THROUGH the hot and humid season,
Prancing with unceasing zeal,
They must not for any reason
Show the weariness they feel.
Others may enjoy the dancing,
Others even may declare
That the singing is entrancing,
And forget to have a care;
But I watch them, Grace and Letty,
Genevieve and Geraldine,
Palpitating, flushed and sweaty,
And I'm saddened by the scene.



Letters to the Editor

Memorials to War Heroes

Editor Boston American:

Many of our cities and towns are erecting monuments or memorials to our lads who left their homes and offered or gave their lives to the cause of freedom. The business in question should not be gone about too precipitately. This world of ours is rather too thickly cluttered up with ill-considered "monuments" already. The idea that a monument must be merely conspicuous in order to serve its purpose has been the popular idea in the past. Few monuments are lovely to look at, and even the heroic conceptions of the first-class artists who have designed some great bronzes or marbles or granites come to look like burlesques after a few months or years of exposure to the weather and the temperamental changes of the more or less frivolous public.

Hindenburg's big wooden statue in Berlin is an excellent example of too previous enthusiasm, and Wilhelm's numerous effigies, ordered by himself and unveiled at his dictation, are being toppled over and made mockeries of by fire-eating politicians. Why should not the monuments to our heroes of the world war take the form of parks or playgrounds or model schoolhouses? The pyramids of Egypt are very fine relics of a bygone era, but one would have been enough. The rest of the pyramid money should have gone into irrigation projects along the Nile, or into libraries for the early Egyptians. If there had been something to read in Egypt at the time of Moses the Israelites might have remained there and grown up with the country. Also, if there had been fewer pyramids and more public schools in Egypt, Cleopatra might have been something more than a dark brown taste in the mouth of history. Let us be practical minded in our new memorials.

By K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.—What do you think about fathers that won't ever play ball or anything with their sons? Where we live there are no boys of my age, and after dinner I try to get my father to pitch to me and he won't. Mother says to write to you, because father reads your column and he thinks you have sense. Mother and I read your column, too. EDWARD.

MY DEAR Edward.
YOU NEGLECT to say.
WHETHER YOU and mother.
AGREE WITH father.
ABOUT MY sense.
BUT THAT'S no matter.
AND ANYWAY.
WHAT I'M going to write.
IS JUST for father.
WHO AFTER a while.
WILL BE growing old.
AND LIKE as not.
WHEN THAT time comes.
HE WILL complain.
THAT THE boy he fed.
AND THE boy he clothed.
AND THE boy he schooled.
CAN FIND no time.
TO PLAY with him.
OR SIT with him.
OR WALK with him.
AND HE'LL forget.
WHEN YOU were young.
HE HAD no time.
TO PLAY with you.
AND OF course I know.
THAT IN these lines.
I CAN'T make fathers.
MEND THEIR ways.
BUT TO your Dad.
I'D LIKE to say.
THAT HERE am I.
WHO HAVE no son.
AND AM growing old.
BUT ALL my life.
I'VE KNOWN the games.
THAT CHILDREN play.
AND EVEN now.
IF IT'S not too hot.
AND THEY'LL let me play.
I PLAY with them.
AND IF not that.
I'LL HANG around.
AND MENTALLY play.
AND THEY'RE my friends.
AND I'M very much older.
THAN MOST of their Dads.
AND I know, of course.
THAT THEY love their Dads.
BUT EVEN at that.
I CAN coax them away.
FOR A little while.
MOST ANY old time.
I THANK you.

"Neighbor" Coolidge

Statesmen and politicians were almost lost yesterday in the multitude which assembled on Allen Field at Smith College to listen to the carefully prepared speech by which Calvin Coolidge accepted the Republican nomination for Vice-President.

It was Northampton's Day and, in a larger sense, New England's Day. It was a turnout of ALL the people, eager to testify to the popular feeling that Northampton, Massachusetts, all New England, is honored by the honor that is Coolidge's. "Law and Order!" "Have Faith in Massachusetts!" the Coolidge slogans were everywhere. They belong to everybody.

* * *

What was the "significance" of Northampton's Day? Was it political? We should say, No. Democrats cheered for Calvin—and Northampton—who will do their darndest in November to lick the tar out of him, possibly with the thought that the Bay State's need for more of Coolidge is far greater than the Nation's.

* * *

We think yesterday's big show in the Smith College town means that the way to win the esteem of one's fellow-citizens is to be deserving of it. The life of this level-headed and steady-going young Yankee has been an open book. There has been no secret, no magic, about his success. Everybody in Northampton saw him "coming along."

Councilman, city solicitor, clerk of the court, chairman of the city committee, legislator, mayor, senator, president of the Senate, Lieutenant-Governor, Governor——

"One thing at a time and that done well."

"Do the day's work."

"WE knew what we were doing," says Northampton. "WE knew he had the stuff in him. WE could tell he was a comer."

Yesterday the coming man arrived and his city turned out to say to him, "Welcome!" and to everybody else, "We told you so!"

* * *

In the same spirit with which Northampton dropped politics and was frankly the good neighbor the American congratulates the city and its first citizen on the great success of Northampton's Day. Let the battle proceed.

GARRETT P. SERVISS' ARTICLE

"I would like to know what proof you have that the moon is round and when a half-moon occurs you do not call it an eclipse. How does an eclipse of the sun occur? If it is the moon passing between the earth and the sun, how is it that you cannot see the moon?—J. MacD., Freeport."

THE moon's phases give visual evidence of the moon's rotundity. When the new moon moves eastward, away from the sun, it appears in the form of a sickle, or crescent, which grows broader through the centre night after night until, at first quarter, its outline becomes a half circle.

The convex side of the sickle is always toward the sun, and is formed by the circular edge of the lunar globe. The concave side, which is always away from the sun, is formed by the line of meeting between day and night upon the moon's surface. This line is in reality a great circle surrounding the moon and dividing it into an illuminated (sunfacing) and a non-luminated hemisphere.

As the moon moves in its orbit around the earth, the position of this circle or of that half of it which appears to us as the concave side of the crescent, shifts eastward over the lunar surface (in consequence of the change in the moon's position with reference to the sun) and more and more of that surface appears to us illuminated by the sunlight.

Light and Dark Sections

But always the slowly changing curve of the concave side of the crescent corresponds to that which the law of geometrical perspective demands for the outline of a great circle drawn round a sphere and viewed at a continually changing angle to its plane. When the circle has swung round so that its plane coincides with the line of sight from the earth, it appears as a straight line dividing the moon into an illuminated half and a dark half. Though the dark half is invisible its existence is shown by its occulting or hiding the stars as it passes over them. The succeeding phases of the moon, from first quarter to full moon, and then back again through third quarter to new moon, follow the same law. You can easily imitate the changing outline of the visible part of the moon by drawing a great circle around a globe and then rotating the globe, while you note the shifting form of the curve presented to your eye by the circle seen at varying angles. If the moon were a flat circular plane instead of a globe its appearance would be quite different. Keeping the same side always earthward as it moved around, its outline would never appear otherwise than circular, but it would be visible from the earth only during one-half of each month—that half during which it passes from what we now know as first quarter through full moon to last quarter.

From the position of last quarter through new moon to first quarter the side of the disk receiving sunlight would not be seen from the earth. Owing to the varying angle at which the sun's rays would strike the plane as it advanced from the first quarter to the full moon position, the luminosity of the flat lunar disk would increase as the angle approached a right angle, but the outline of the disk, as already said, would always be circular. The sudden appearance of this glimering white circle near the meridian once every month would be a remarkable phenomenon, and equally remarkable would be its disappearance about two weeks later.

How to Get Verification

You can verify all this in a most interesting way by drawing a circle to represent the moon's orbit, with the earth at its centre; then, supposing the sun to be far off to one side (say the right), draw a number of radii to the points on the circumference of the circle where the moon should be at the phases of new, halfway between new and first quarter, first quarter, half-way between first quarter and full (and intermediate positions if you choose) and at each of these points draw a short straight line at right angles to the radius, to represent the flat moon. Finally draw a series of parallel straight lines from the direction of the sun, each one of these lines meeting one of the short lines that represent the moon's disk. Such a diagram will show you at a glance that the side of the flat moon which faces the earth cannot be touched by the sunlight until the moon has passed the position where its direction from the earth is at right angles to the direction of the sun. The construction of simple diagrams like this is an immense aid in making clearer many of the facts of astronomy.
